SITUATION CALLED SERIOUS

Large Creameries Serving
Many Farmers Are Reported Ready to Close

By Associated Press
Madison—Wisconsin faces a coal famine which will commence to cripple industry in a very few days unless relief is made available, the railroad commission reported Friday on the basis of a survey of coal supplies on the docks at state ports.

"The situation is worse than we dreamed of," L. B. Gettle, chairman of the commission said in commenting upon the result of the investigation. This survey showed that large docking companies generally receiving 50,000 to 100,000 tons of coal each month during the shipping season had received only negligible amounts since the first of year. Practically no fuel remains on the docks.

Milwaukee and Superior docking companies sent word to the commission that both their hard and soft coal supplies were depleted. They said that few shipments had been received since the first of year and none were in sight.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED
Governor Blaine, informed of the serious situation, directed the appointment of a committee composed of J. B. Borden, representing the state board of public affairs, L. E. Gettle, representing the railroad commission and Edward Norman representing the marketing department, to cooperate with the federal government in handling the problem.

The committee will meet during the day. The railroad commission is already organized to cooperate with the Interstate Commerce Commission to carry out priority orders.

ASK RELIEF

Word came from Waukesha that large creameries serving hundreds of farmers through the dairy district of Wisconsin were without coal and faced a shutdown, which they said would be a calamity for the farmers. The creameries appealed to the commission for aid in securing coal supplies which they said the Green Bay coal companies were unable to supply.

Richland Center operating its own utilities said that its coal bins were practically empty.

Utility companies generally are appealing for some relief. Many report that they have fuel enough to operate for the next month, but say that their supplies have never been so low.

All concrete highway construction work will have to be closed down soon due to lack of cement supplies, the highway commission reports. Cement companies, without coal, are unable to fill their contracts.

MOB CHASES STRIKE

Over Rumor of Importation of Negroes

By Associated Press
Janesville—Stirred by rumors that Negro strike breakers had been imported by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road to take the place of the shopmen who are out here, a mob of several hundred gathered after the band concert Thursday night and surrounded the roundhouse where the strikebreakers were working. Some stones were thrown by women and girls who were most noisy. Epithets were hurled at the men and after the doors of the roundhouse had been pushed open seven of the ten strike breakers fled into the open. Five ran to the police station and two struck the trail out the Mineral Point division and nothing has been heard of them since. The five men reached the police station ahead of the running mob and were given protection there. No one was hurt and early stories of beatings and rough work were not verified. A deputy who was said to have been hurt in the melee, it was later learned, had received his injuries from falling out of his automobile. Five of the men returned to work today. Few workers were at the scene and most of them were the pickets on regular duty.

The crowd was made of curious seekers and strike sympathizers of all parts.

U. S. SHOULD HALT STRIKE,
HARDING TOLDMichigan Governor Tells President That He Is Taking Wrong View

Lansing, Mich.—A letter from President Harding declaring in effect that the federal government is powerless to interfere with the attitude of the United Mine Workers of America to wards independent local agreements that at present nothing can be done except enable men willing to work in safety and that the big issue in the coal strike dispute is national dictation, "unintentionally assumed by mine workers" which must be taken care of by legislation, drew sharp disagreement from Governor A. J. Groesbeck.

Replying to Governor Groesbeck's original proposal that the state take over and operate the mines in Michigan the President said:

"I don't know whether you have the persuasive power to effect a voluntary agreement in Michigan, but I think it fair to assume you would not enforce such an arrangement. For the present in the absence of law to guarantee service for the public we can only take steps necessary to enable men willing to do so in perfect safety. I do not think this means an armed guard at the mouth of every mine. It does need the assurance that state authority and federal authorities, when needed, mean to protect every man in the pursuit of lawful employment."

"It is a matter of record," the President wrote "that coal operators and mine workers in many districts have been quite ready to come to an understanding but the policy of the national organization is hostile to any district or state arrangement."

This apparently is one of the issues involved and is one which must be definitely settled. I do not know of any way of settling it under the legal authorities which are now possessed by either state or federal government."

Manifestly, legislation must be provided and I mean to submit the whole problem to congress at the earliest consistent time possible after the house assemblies.

"If the coal producers of the United States were so organized that a national body were to determine the policy of every member and permit no sales of coal except on dictation of terms by the national officials, every state legislature and congress itself would instantly put to an end such a practice. The mine workers' unhesitatingly assumed national dictation."

The Governor's reply in the form of a letter, said in part:

"Thinking conditions it seems a pity that the public must be made to suffer without any justification whatever. You will pardon me for taking the position that the national government has the power and authority to protect our citizens from the embarrassing situation that faces us. I do not see how we can concede that such power does not exist. I am writing frankly because the people are becoming impatient of further delay in the adoption of measures that will spell an early end of the matter."

Coal Strike Could Be Settled
After Rail Men Come to Agreement

Washington—Presidential influence will settle the rail strike within the next forty eight hours.

Conferences between President Harding and T. Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway executives, on the one hand and R. M. Jewell and representatives of the shop crafts unions on the other, have proceeded to the point where acceptance of a formula for a settlement cannot be long delayed.

Briefly, the president wants the men to go back to work and the railroads to take them back with the understanding that rehearings will be given matters already in dispute before the United States Railroad Labor board and with the further agreement that the seniority rights problem will be left for future determination.

In other words the process would be this. The workmen would return to work and ask that their seniority rights be restored. Naturally the railroads, to be consistent, would refuse to grant the request. This would immediately become a dispute.

Mantowoc—"When a man wants to be a member of the Socialist party, he ought to say so, and when he wants to be a Republican he ought to say so especially if he is seeking office. It is considerable of an embarrassment to be confronted by a candidate who wants to be both a Socialist and a Republican but won't say whether he is either one," said Wm. A. Ganfield, opponent of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette in the coming primaries.

"I cannot find myself indulging in a form of campaign which will divide our American citizens into racial groups," Ganfield said. "Recently speakers have addressed you who have sought to do that very thing."

"I cannot find myself indulging in a form of campaign which will divide our American citizens into racial groups," Ganfield said. "Recently speakers have addressed you who have sought to do that very thing."

"I want to remind you, however, that more than a quarter of a century ago, when Bryan advocated the coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 it was the German American citizens who stood together virtually as a body and voted against that economic hoax. Modern radicalism is more dangerous than the doctrines advocated by Bryan in 1896 and more likely to play havoc with our present economic system."

"I am confident you will find the Americans of German descent standing today just where they did in 1896."

Preceding his Manitowoc meeting, Ganfield during the day visited Cleveland, Ohio, where he visited Maribel and Francis Creek.

In his speech at Mishicot, Ganfield said "I have three principles in my creed for capital and labor. They are that the workingman shall have a generous wage, that capital shall have a fair return and that the public shall not be asked to pay more than a reasonable price for common utilities. Any concern that is unable to meet those conditions should go out of business. If a business is able to meet those conditions but does not do so the government should compel it to."

Flint, Mich.—More than 300 men and women were slated for appearance in police court here Friday, the result of raids Thursday night on every place in the city suspected of violating the liquor laws. The wholesale cleanup was ordered by Mayor McKelgen, anti detectives had made a quiet survey of conditions here and turned over to officers supervising the raid, a complete directory of suspected saloons, pool halls and resorts.

The raids were conducted chiefly in the northern part of the city.

The city jail was filled early Thursday night and the later arrivals were taken directly to the court rooms, where they were assigned seats and guarded through the night for opening of court Friday morning.

THREE POINTS
ARE PROPOSED
BY PRESIDENTPlans Hinge on Adjustment of Seniority Rights of Rail Employees

By Associated Press

STRIKE SITUATION

Three proposals for settlement of the strike, hinging on the seniority questions reported to have been made by President Harding.

Executives of 148 railroads will meet in New York Tuesday supposedly to discuss executive peace plans.

Strike leaders said to be preparing for a meeting in Chicago for same purpose.

Reports from all sections indicate a pronounced increase in acts of violence.

More injunctions issued by Federal judges against strikers.

Union officials declare men prepared "to fight to a finish" despite fact no strike benefits are being paid.

B. M. Jewell, his executive council and Timothy Healy, delay departure from Washington indicating further conferences with President Harding.

Chicago—Though prospects of peace in the rail strike were brightened by the union leaders abandoning plans for their return to headquarters here from Washington the possibility of an actual settlement seemed at least a week distant. Meanwhile the general situation was expected to remain at a status quo.

The next move for peace was up to the eastern railroad executives who are to meet in New York next Tuesday to consider three tentative proposals submitted by President Harding for smoothing out the seniority question which apparently is the only obstacle to termination of the walkout.

While union leaders had planned to be back at their headquarters here today they remained at Washington for further conference at the White House and it was believed that their stay in Washington would be prolonged until after the rail executives meet in New York to reach a decision. No new announcement of traffic conditions were made Thursday by either the eastern or western roads but the union men continued to maintain that the strike was 100 per cent effective.

In New York, John J. Dowd, chairman of the eastern strike committee asserted false claims were being made by the roads as to the number of strikers returning to work and he advised B. M. Jewell the strike leader, to "fight and win if the eastern executive will not negotiate."

Spread of violence also marked the day's developments, the reports of disorders becoming more numerous. This change was noted by a labor member of the United States Railroad board and prompted his comment that "when they get violent, that is when they lose."

Washington—Three proposals for immediate ending of the railroad strike have been submitted to representatives of railroad executives and labor unions by President Harding according to information obtained Friday from administration advisers who talked with the executive.

Three proposals all hinging on various plans for adjusting the employees' seniority rights, will be submitted it was said, to the executives meeting in New York Tuesday and to an employees conference in Chicago to be arranged by B. M. Jewell, the shopmen's leader.

Outside railroad contracting, it was said would be abandoned by the rail road under each of the three proposals.

One of the proposals according to the chairman's suggestion, would be for the railroad to waive the seniority question and take all strikers back to work. Another was said to give "loyal" men who have remained at work prior seniority rights over strikers and the third was for separate committees to be appointed.

SOME SHOPS OPEN

A statement issued by the western railroad president's committee on public relations declared that rights of new men must be respected.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has established employment offices at a number of points along its various lines and opened an employment headquarters in Milwaukee. Shops of the Chesapeake and Ohio at Covington, Ky. were opened with a full force, the railroads announced.

There was a noticeable increase in the number of reports of violence reaching here from points as far west as San Bernardino, Calif. and as far east as Concord, N. H.

TORTURE ROBBERS
SEEN NEAR MERRILL

Merrill, Wis.—Mrs. Schneider, Heller, Wis., says that a Ford with two overall clad highwaymen, who had carried between $40,000 and $50,000 in gold coin loot from the Hougan farm home at Tavera, Wis., passed through Heller about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the men asking the way to Rhineland. The automobile carried a large worn trunk.

A general alarm to all police authorities in the surrounding country has been sent out and the arrest is hoped for of the bandits who drove off with the life savings of Ellen Horgan, the 64 year old woman, who had changed all her money into gold and hidden it around her farm home. The men tortured her to make her betray its hiding place and finally beat her into unconsciousness with clubs.

The victim whose shoulder blade was broken, and who was badly cut about the head and shoulders, described one of her assailants as being tall and slim, with dark eyes and a black mustache, and the other as short and stout.

Madison—All college courses given at Wisconsin Normal Schools will be discontinued after July 1, 1923, the state board of Normal School regents decided at a meeting here yesterday afternoon with a committee of city superintendents and normal presidents.

Four year teacher training courses was substituted in their place.

This action by the board of normal regents marks the termination of a contest between those who have favored extension of college training and those who believe that the nine teachers training schools would restrict themselves to this type of instruction.

PICKFORD WEDDING PLAN HAS BEEN CHANGED AGAIN

By Associated Press

Los Angeles—Another change has been made in the wedding plans of Jack Pickford, motion picture actor and Marilyn Miller of the stage.

Originally the wedding was set for Aug. 1. Then it was advanced to 7 o'clock the night of July 30, now while the date remains the same, the hour has been changed to two o'clock in the afternoon.

The license has been obtained revealing the bride's surname as Carter and her age as 22, while the groom is listed as John C. Pickford, 28.

The minister has not yet been chosen but the ceremony will be performed at the Beverly Hills residence of the groom's sister, Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks.

GREAT LAKES
SAILORS VOTE
FOR WALK OUTStrike Would Effect 400 Freight
Vessels of Lake Carriers Association

By Associated Press

Chicago—Further canvass of the strike vote taken by members of the marine firemen, oilers, water tenders, and coal passers union and marine cooks and stewards union who work on freight boats operating on the Great Lakes was being made Friday.

K. B. Nolan, general secretary of the Sailors' union, declared that the canvass would show the other organizations favored a strike almost as thoroughly as the sailors, 94 per cent of whom voted to strike according to the secretary.

If attempts at a settlement should fail and a strike be called it would affect approximately 400 freight boats of the lake carriers' association. There are about 11,500 men in the three unions who work on these boats.

Executive committees of the three organizations were to meet at Detroit next week to decide on the course to be followed. The questions involved there were no letters dispute are demands for an eight hour day and a revision of wage scales. According to Mr. Nolan wages have been cut from $130 to $80 a month since May, 1921 and seamen now work 12 hours a day.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY IS FOUND LAYING IN ROAD

Janesville, Wis.—With a bullet through the heart and a 32 calibre revolver lying by its side, the dead body of an unknown man was found at the side of the road from Williams Bay to the village of Lake Geneva.

The dead man was in Williams Bay Wednesday and said he was from Des Moines, Iowa. He carried a pack for camping. There were no letters or other means of identification. The index finger of the right hand had been amputated at the second joint and efforts are being made to have him identified from Des Moines.

IRISH INSURGENTS ARE BEING SUBDUED

Dublin—All the main towns in the Connemara district have now been cleared of insurgent troops and rapid progress is being made by the national forces in the west and the Munster province, says an official report issued today.

The report says there is good ground for hoping that within the next fortnight organized resistance of the republican irregulars will have been so broken that further postponement of the Irish parliament will be unnecessary.

At present five members of the provisional government cabinet and 16 other members of the Dail are actively engaged in the suppression of disorders.

It was reported today that owing to constant interference with trucks, Irish railroad companies were contemplating the suspension of all railroad traffic for a long period.

STATE ORDERS UNION DEPOT FOR LA CROSSE

Madison, Wis.—The railroad commission today ordered construction of a union depot at LaCrosse, Wis., by the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago and Northwestern, the Chicago Burlington and Quincy, the Green Bay and Western and the La Crosse and Southeastern Railroad companies. Ninety days are given in which the companies may submit plans for the consideration of the commission.

Choice of a site for the union depot was left with the companies.

ROAD CONDITIONS

By Associated Press

Milwaukee—The shortening up of two important detours and the promise of the opening of several new concrete stretches within the next few weeks was a feature of the road in from various headquarters this week the Milwaukee Journal's Tour department report.

The first important break in the 26 miles of detour on highway 15, will come July 29 when some four miles is to be taken off north of Singer. The new concrete is now laid to Addison, thus cutting down a bad stretch across the marsh and allowing traffic to travel entirely on county trunk roads. Three miles of the eight mile stretch out of Theresa has been opened also. It is expected that this work will be finished about Aug. 15.

The detour on 15 south of Oshkosh has been shortened one and one half miles. The rest of three miles stretch will be completed within the next two weeks.

Three of the six and one half miles of concrete on the Oshkosh-Omro road has been laid.

Highway 57 still continues to hold the bulk of traffic to the northward but is beginning to show signs of deterioration.

Operators Have No Knowledge

SUPPORT PRIORITY ORDER

Governor of North Carolina
Says U. S. Is Encroaching
on State Rights

By Associated Press

Chicago—Coal operators Friday were continuing to deny knowledge of any scheduled peace meeting such as mentioned by John L. Lewis head of the United Mine Workers and the strike seemed little nearer settlement.

Mr. Lewis' statement that he had "every reason to believe that an interstate joint conference of the central competitive fields will be arranged within a few days" was discounted by officials of the chief national coal association at Washington. They said that the decision had been reached to make no move in the central fields.

An early agreement in Illinois was said to be a "dead issue" following adjournment of the miners' state executive board at St. Louis. Illinois operators again refused to enter into any sectional or national wage conference.

Meanwhile Secretary Hoover was receiving assurance from the governor of various states that the federal government would receive every aid from them in preventing retail profiteering in coal during the strike emergency. Governor Shoup of Colorado indicated that he would Friday add his assurance to that of the governors of Iowa, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and Kansas, already received by the secretary of commerce.

ONE GOVERNOR OBJECTS
Governor Morrison of North Carolina, however, declared that the federal government is engaged in a steady encroachment upon the rights of the states in an address before the convention of a state press association.

It was expected that the president's coal committee which has been working to perfect an organization to carry out the coal control program would be ready to function by the first of next week. The name of the fifth member of the coal committee was expected to be announced Friday.

More than half of the state railroad and public utilities committees have assumed Commissioner Aitchison of the Interstate Commerce Commission and reporting that body on the president's coal committee, of their co-operation in carrying out the priority orders.

At St. Paul it was asserted that coal being shipped to Duluth to points in Illinois. The Interstate Commerce Commission would be asked to place an embargo on such shipments if it is found that they are actually being made, said Ivan Bowen, field administrator.

REPORT VIOLENCE

Violence increased in connection with coal strike in Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Three coal carrying railroads, the Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio and Louisville and Nashville, have declared embargoes over their lines against acceptance of any freight except foodstuffs, livestock and fuel. The actions were taken under the Interstate Commerce Commission declaration of an emergency which authorized roads embarrassed by the shopmen's strike to show preference and establish priority in transportation.

MINISTER OUSTED FROM HIS CHURCH

By Associated Press
Lawton, Okla.—Convicted a "bathing suit" charge and allegations of perjury and high handed disciplining of members of his flock, the Rev. Thomas J. Irwin, former pastor of the Lawton Presbyterian church was untraced as a minister of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America early Friday by the judicial committee of the El Reno Presbytery.

Mr. Irwin was found guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister in performing a marriage ceremony last summer at Medicine park a resort near here in which the principals, including the minister, wore bathing suits. It was alleged the wedding was conducted in a spirit of revelry, bringing disrepute to the church.

He was convicted of having sworn to a false affidavit to obtain a district court injunction restraining interference with his conduct of affairs of the Lawton church. The third count on which his jurors voted guilty was that he disciplined members of his congregation without due process as provided by church regulations.

within the meaning of the transport act and the labor board would get jurisdiction over the matter.

DEPENDS ON BOARD

If the labor board should subsequently decide that the seniority question had arisen after the present strike began and was not really an issue before that and if the board should grant the restoration of seniority rights without making the decision a precedent for future cases all of which would have to stand on their own bottom, the railroads would be bound to accept the findings of the labor board but really the policy of the administration.

Mr. Harding has tried to maneuver the situation without attempting to influence the labor board's actions but occasions for guidance have arisen which have a direct bearing on the settlement of the rail strike and the president is using his powers of persuasion to bring about a compromise which will ostensibly be the action of the labor board but really the policy of the administration.

COAL AGREEMENT TO FOLLOW

As for the coal strike, the president feels that he will have a better chance to tackle that situation again possibly with a new conference between miners and operators if the rail strike is brought to a peaceful end. John L. Lewis' published statement that he is ready for a "joint conference" is regarded as significant for he did not limit the conference to specific sections or require that all operators be represented. He made no limitations. The administration finds itself more or less fatigued from previous efforts to do something through a conference with miners and operators but the situation has grown acute since the disputants were on the White House carpet and the belief prevails that a change of attitude and a compromising disposition now may be apparent where no symptoms of reconciliation were visible a week ago.

B G—I see that you will change your position in the next three months. Cannot see the nature of this work.

O M—I can not see where your cat is located, but some one has it that answers to the initials of A H.

E J G—I see that you lost your ring on the street. It was found, but there is no chance of recovery.

B H—I see that the umbrella was left at a gathering and picked up by another person.

A C L—I do not see that you will hear from your friend very soon.

A V M—I see that your brother is alive and you will see him in the next year. He is very well.

H H U D—I see that you will receive the money. He is not in a position to pay you now.

K—I see that you will hear from your husband but it will mean quite a wait.

M V O—I think it advisable for your husband to buy a car, and I find that he will do so.

COP GETS FASTER BIKE TO CHASE FAST DRIVERS

Wilbur Bogan, county motorcycle officer, who was injured in a collision with an automobile a few weeks ago in which his motorcycle was also damaged, is itching to be back on the job. He expects to be sailing on the public highways at a higher speed than ever. His new motorcycle, a Henderson Four, was expected to arrive from Chicago Friday afternoon. A few days ago he went to Chicago to have some alterations made on the vehicle. It is equipped with a four gallon tank, alloyed pistons and is said to be able to reach a speed of 55 miles an hour.

"I'd like to see anybody get away from me now," he grinned. "I'll catch them all now."

NYHUS OBSERVES FARMING IN WEST

Appleton Man Returns from Extended Trip—Visits Source of Cabbage Seed

Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank, has returned from an extended trip throughout the west, where he made a study of agricultural conditions and rural community development. His travels took him to California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Minnesota, and other points.

Mr. Nyhus visited the farms at Seattle, Wash., from which the pedigree cabbage is obtained each year for growers here. He examined the fields and made arrangements for future shipments of seed.

The Appleton man was impressed deeply with the extensive development that is being carried on at Sacramento, Calif., the leading city of the famous Sacramento river valley where so much fruit is grown. He found that a large paid staff was maintained to further the interests of growers and assist them in developing greater production.

The state of California has in the employ of its state department of agriculture 1,000 persons, Mr. Nyhus found. Farms in California and other states have not the appearance of prosperity and thoroughness that obtains in Wisconsin, however, he said.

Miss Charlotte Wood, who has returned from three years in the Philippine Islands, is the guest of her sister, Miss Bess Wood, 517 John st. Mrs. Walter Gorman of Wausau, is expected at the Wood home on Friday and Mrs. Otto Lay of Kewaskum also is expected. Mrs. Gorman and Mrs. Lay are sisters of the Misses Wood.

J. M. C. A. WILL BUILD ADDITION TO DORMITORIES

Start Campaign for Funds—Harwood Re-elected President of Association

Erection of a dormitory addition to the Y. M. C. A. virtually was assured Thursday when the board of directors at a luncheon last night elected a committee to arrange to secure the needed funds and put the campaign into operation.

A still hunt will begin at once to secure the sum needed to carry out the project. Members of the committee are A. F. Tuttle, G. E. Buchanan, W. S. Smith, F. J. Harwood and George F. Werner. This group had given the matter exhaustive study and its report pointed out the need of the new unit and revenue-producing possibilities was adopted. All officers were re-elected for another year. They are F. J. Harwood, president; Judson G. Rosebush, vice president; James A. Wood, secretary; A. F. Tuttle, treasurer. Mr. Harwood was given a unanimous, standing vote when his reelection was proposed.

A. F. Tuttle was engaged as physical director to the new unit. He, who resigned July 15, Mr. Jensen formerly was assistant to Mr. Starkey and has been acting director since the latter left for California. He now will assume full charge and an assistant will be engaged early in the fall.

23 MORE ROOMS

The dormitory addition, the committee pointed out in its report, will provide 23 additional rooming units. Two were needed badly for the older boys' work will be provided in the new unit also. The structure will be erected above the gymnasium if the plans materialize.

Election of directors as nominated by the board was confirmed through the recent ballot, according to a report of the nominating committee. G. E. Jones, G. E. Buchanan and H. W. Russell were re-elected for three years. Three new directors elected are F. E. Schlitz for one year, G. H. Packard for two years and W. S. Ford for three years. This gives the board 14 members and it is possible that a fifteenth will be elected later.

OFFICERS SUBMIT REPORTS

Reports submitted by the employees showed several accomplishments during June. The 190 who learned to swim in the campaigns outside of the membership, 50 of whom were men, 65 boys and 75 women. The total attendance at all classes during the campaign was 754. The enrollment was 75 men, 125 boys and 155 women, most of whom took one lesson or more.

Summer memberships for June totaled 17 for men and 27 for boys. Eighty positions were filled by C. L. Boynton, employment secretary, during June, the largest number since the department was inaugurated.

G. F. Werner, general secretary, announced that a new electric dish washing machine had been installed in the cafeteria and another electric fan provided. This completes the contemplated improvements, he said.

The third billiard table, idle for some time because of lack of space, has been placed in the basement social room for men. The bowling alleys are being overhauled for the fall opening.

OSHKOSH-FONDY ROAD FINISHED IN 2 WEEKS

The entire concrete highway between Oshkosh and Fond du Lac will be open for traffic two weeks from next Sunday, it has been announced by the Winnebago county highway commissioner. Part of the road has been closed for several weeks while a new concrete highway was being built. Travelers complained bitterly of the detour around the construction work.

Shoulders on the new road will be completed in two weeks and there will be no further interruption to travel between Appleton and Fond du Lac this year, it is said.

BEGIN CONSTRUCTION OF SOUTH RIVER-ST. CULVERT

The Hoffman Construction company began pouring concrete for the construction of the large culvert that is to be placed at the washout on South River-st. The culvert is to be 100 feet in length and about 7 feet in diameter. The washout occurred during the terrific rain storm of June 10, tearing out a filling of 30 feet in depth.

LAST SERVICE ON CAMPUS SUNDAY

July Series of Meetings to Close—Dr. J. A. Holmes is to Be Speaker

Open air church services will be held for the last time this season at 7:45 Sunday at Lawrence college campus in line with the plan of Appleton Ministerial association to conduct these meetings during the month of July.

Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor of the Methodist church is to preach. His subject will be "The Dissemination of Truth."

Spirited gospel singing again is promised for this gathering. Two pianos will be used, with Mrs. J. H. Mellich and Mrs. A. R. Eads as accompanists. Capable leadership will be provided for the song service.

This season's meetings have been much more enjoyable, because the seats are in a quiet place on the lawn instead of on the sidewalk at the entrance to Main hall. It is expected that another large audience will attend Sunday.

OBJECT TO DUMPING OF WEEDS ON PUBLIC ROADS

The boomerang throwers of Australia have nothing on the farmers of Grand Chute who are making a practice of dumping noxious weeds on the center of public highways. Travelers who went over the roads lately could not account for the presence of a large quantity of sour dock that was strewn on the road. On inquiring into the matter they learned that the farmers who placed them there did so under the impression that a highway is everybody's property and that this method was sure death on the weeds. They did not take into account protesting farmers say, that the weeds will go to seed and that the next heavy rain would probably wash the seeds back upon the same farmer's property as well as on that of their neighbors.

DELINQUENTS MUST PAY LICENSES BEFORE AUG. 1

Rounding up of delinquent persons or firms doing business under various licenses issued by the city of Appleton will be begun after Aug. 1 by the police department. Chief George T. Prim has issued a warning that all licenses which were due July 1 must be paid before that time or prosecution will follow. The licensing include such lines of business as soft drink establishments, taxicab lines, junk dealers, milk dealers, motorbus operators and others.

Delivery Clerks Ready To Vote "Yes" On Plan To Change House Numbers

All Are Agreed That Their Work Would be Simplified by Systematic Method of Naming Appleton Streets.

For a simplified and methodical street name and number system. Delivery clerks, truck drivers, taxicab drivers and messengers vote yes. There are few persons in Appleton who are required to travel the streets as much as they. While some of them are unusually familiar with the multiplicity and hidden locations of Appleton's streets, they admit that it took weeks or even months to master the system, depending on the extent of their street travel.

Once a driver has become familiar with the system, he has become a valuable employee and employers are greatly handicapped if he quits his job or takes a vacation. One driver said that he has had no vacation in two years and didn't know what the company would do if he were to take one. There have been times when he was sick for several days, he said, and during those days two and three men were used to take his place. One College-ave. business house which has just given one of its drivers a vacation sends a boy along with the substitute driver to assist him in locating the streets over which he delivers.

WANTS PRACTICAL CHANGE

"Any system would be an improvement over the one we have now," said Oscar Kuntz of the Kuntz Taxi line. "But if a change is to be made at all, let it be a practical one. I'm for a system of street numbers 100 to a block. The street name system we have is always hard on us when we break in a new man."

A young delivery man employed by the Pettibone Peabody company said that his greatest difficulty was in finding around on the northwest quarter of the city. Many of the streets between College-ave. and Second-ave. and running parallel with them have names that are not known east of North Division-st. The same streets take different names as they cross this line.

CAN'T FIND HOUSES

A truck driver employed by Schlatter Hardware company is dissatisfied with the present number system. In the winter when the days are short and drivers must deliver in the dark, he said, it is difficult to locate the house one is sent to. A system of 100 numbers to a block, he said, would enable him to count the blocks as he drives along. When he arrives at the block in which the house number in question is to be found, he can practically tell from the number on which side of the street and in what part of the block the house is located. A house numbered 201 he would know to be on the corner. The number 829 would probably be at the end of the block. Under this system he would seldom have to alight and stop at houses to ask questions.

"We usually have trouble when we are breaking in a new messenger boy," said W. F. Storch, manager of the Western Union office. "With a practical street name and number system any boy could practically help himself. Rather than changing to the numbered streets and avenues, I

Goodrich new tire prices

—lowest cost mileage ever known

The new base line tire prices established by Goodrich, effective July 20th, give motorists a definite guide to tire prices as Goodrich Tires are the definite standard of Tire quality. They know now they can buy the very best tire—the one quality Silvertown—the tire that has always held its leadership because—it wears longer, looks better, and because, mileage considered, it costs less than any other tire at any price. Dealers have been quick to point out to their customers the big advantage and economy of buying would prefer to have the streets half numbered and half named. A system of numerical streets alone would be confusing. It is harder to remember numbers than names. The intersection of Third-st. and Fourth-ave might easily be mistaken for Fourth-st. and Third-ave. The prefixes North and West add to the confusion when they are not spelled out. An N in long hand often looks like a W. The system proposed by the city engineer seems to me to be quite feasible."

SOLDIERS' BUREAU IS DISCONTINUED

Beginning Aug. the local physician's office of the United States veterans bureau will be discontinued. Dr. E. F. McGrath has been the physician in charge. This service has been discontinued in order to cut expenses, it is said.

Hereafter disabled war veterans will have to go to the bureau office at Green Bay or to Oshkosh for examinations.

PROMINENT APPLETON FOLK AMONG THOSE WHO TESTIFY

Many Who Have Never Before Indorsed Any Preparation Gladly Offer Public Praise for Trutona.

That Trutona is truly an unusual and extraordinary medicine is strikingly shown by the fact that many Appleton people, who had never before publicly indorsed any preparation have gladly and unqualifiedly praised Trutona, among them being Miss Selma Wolff, 1032 Elm-st., who says: "For several months my system had been rundown I had such a tired, achy feeling all the time—some days just feeling like I didn't want to move a step. My appetite was poor and I had such a bad taste in my mouth continually. I knew that my system needed a general toning up and decided to try Trutona. I am, indeed, satisfied with the benefits this medicine has given me. It's a wonderful preparation in my opinion. My former tired, achy feeling has all disappeared. I've a ravishing appetite now and the bitter taste is gone from my mouth. In fact, I feel just fine again." Hundreds of Appleton people who are not really sick, yet feel so languid, achy and out of sorts that life seems almost a burden, particularly need Trutona at this season. YOU'LL be surprised at the rapidity and thoroughness with which Trutona will quiet your nerves, purify your blood, rebuild you broken-down, worn-out tissues and the like which are responsible for your poor health. Hundreds of bottles of Trutona are sold every week in Appleton at SCHLITZ BROS. Drug Store; in Neenah at MARSH BROS. Drug Store; in Berlin at the M. & Z. Pharmacy; Kaukauna, Brauer's Drug Store; Black Creek, A. A. Gerl Drug Store; Seymour, A. M. McCord Drug Store; Dale, H. A. Reuse Drug Store and in surrounding towns at all good druggists. adv.

ANOTHER LA FOLLETTE HERESY

A more dangerous assault upon the integrity and perpetuity of constitutional government in this country has never been made than is embodied in the recent suggestion of Senator La Follette, that it is a usurpation of power on the part of the supreme court of the United States to declare an act of congress unconstitutional. This suggestion, if made in good faith, is based upon a misconception of the distinction made in the constitution itself between legislative and judicial power. It is solely within the power of the congress to pass laws; but it is equally within the judicial power to determine their meaning and validity, when those questions come before the courts for determination.

The only powers possessed by congress are those granted by the constitution. Congress has no inherent powers. Every legislative act that is beyond or outside of the powers granted by that instrument is not in conformity to it, and therefore is unconstitutional. The federal supreme court was instituted, in part, to determine whether congress, in the passage of laws, has acted within the powers granted to it by the constitution. Such a determination is not a legislative matter, but judicial in character. If a person asserts the existence of an act of congress in support of a right he claims in a court action, the court not only is called upon to interpret the act of congress relied upon, to ascertain its application to the case, but to determine whether such act is within the constitutional powers of congress, and therefore the law of the case. If it is not within those powers then it is a mere nullity, having no authority on which to rest. If an agent exceeds the authority granted to him by his principal his acts, so far as they are in excess of such authority, are void.

Suppose for instance that congress should undertake to exercise the police power, which the constitution reserves exclusively to the states and withholds from congress, certainly there should be vested somewhere authority to declare such an attempt beyond the powers of congress. Since such a declaration to be authoritative must be the judgment of a court, it is judicial in character and therefore its determination is vested finally in the supreme court, because the constitution declares (Sec. 1 Art. III): "The judicial power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish."

This has been the recognized interpretation of this provision of the constitution ever since the organization of our federal system. More than 100 years ago, the supreme court of the United States, in the leading case of McCulloch vs. Maryland 4 Wheaton 316, 423, speaking through the great chief justice, John Marshall, having that question before it for decision, used this language:

Should congress, in the execution of its powers, adopt measures which are prohibited by the constitution, or should congress, under the pretext of executing its powers, pass laws for the accomplishment of objects not entrusted to the government, it must become the painful duty of this tribunal, should a case requiring a decision come before it, to say that such act was not the law of the land.

This decision has been recognized, ever since its pronouncement, as a correct interpretation of the judicial power vested under the constitution in that high tribunal. Most of the members of the court pronouncing that decision were active participants in the deliberations of the conventions ratifying, in their respective states, the constitution, and knew that one of the stumbling blocks in the way of its ratification was the far-reaching scope of the judicial power conferred on the supreme court. One of the most pronounced arguments made again its ratification was the fact that the supreme court was empowered to pronounce invalid a law passed by congress. But, in spite of this argument the substance of which is being urged anew by Senator LaFollette, the constitution was ratified by the Colonies, and the courts, have, from that day to the present, asserted the existence in the courts of this power to declare an act of congress invalid when in conflict with the constitution. A contrary theory would invalidate the constitution itself and would be equivalent to attempting government without a constitution.

It was thought by the great men who framed the constitution, that unrestrained, arbitrary legislative power could not, without endangering the liberties of the people, be entrusted to congress. If congress were permitted to pass laws, at will, without the guiding and restraining hand of a constitution, that instrument as a palladium of the peoples' liberties could be rendered of no effect by a single department of the government. The wise framers of the constitution, holding such a view, provided for the judicial branch of the government—the courts—and gave to it jurisdiction to determine whether an act of congress is within its powers, and if not, to declare it void.

Is the Wisconsin senior senator wiser than the framers of the constitution? Or more learned in the law than Chief Justice Marshall and all the distinguished judges who have, for more than 100 years, followed in his footsteps in the interpretation of the scope of the judicial power under the constitution? We are unwilling to admit any such superiority in the senator. Our government has stood for almost 140 years all the tests of stability under the balance of powers declared by the constitution; and any changes in the system which will destroy that balance, as the La Follette suggestion would, if put into effect, are sure to endanger the liberties of the people. Such changes may respond to the demands of certain classes, or to the plea of demagogues who are playing the game of politics for political preferment, without a thought of what may be the result; but the true patriot who seeks only his country's good will close his ears to all such demands and insist that the wisdom of the fathers, as expressed in the constitution shall continue to be our guide. It has been demonstrated beyond chance for argument that the system of balance between legislative, judicial, and executive powers in our constitution has brought about a form of government superior to any other that has so far been devised. Let us keep this balance unimpaired notwithstanding the assaults of self-interested vote-catching politicians.

THE LAST DOSE

The Republican party, at least the politicians at Washington who seem to be directing its affairs, has not learned anything from experience in the past years of the party's tariff history. In the campaign of 1912, when the Democrats came into power, one of the chief contributing causes to Republican defeat was the notorious Payne-Aldrich tariff, of which wool schedule K was the most offending clause. Indeed, Mr. Taft, at the time president, pronounced schedule K wholly indefensible. The Payne-Aldrich bill and Schedule K in particular were the culmination of a tariff policy that had gradually made protection distasteful to the voters because it had been carried to the extent of extorting tribute from the consumer for the enrichment of special interests.

The leaders in congress today have evidently forgotten the campaign of 1912, or they have chosen to ignore its warning, for the senate in its consideration of the Fordney measure has voted a tariff on wool that makes its predecessor, Schedule K, look cheap. The duty is 33 cents a pound on raw wool and is 8 cents more than even Mr. Fordney, arch-apostle of the high protectionists, had the temerity to fix in the house bill. Four Republicans had both the courage and good sense to break with their party on the wool issue and vote against the 33-cent rate, and we are glad to note that Senator Lenroot was among them.

It is claimed by opponents of the bill that a duty of 33 cents a pound on wool will cause an increase of $5 on a suit of clothes and $7 on an overcoat. Supporters of the schedule contend it will not increase the price more than $1, while the federal tariff commission estimates the increase at from $2.03 to $2.85 on a suit of clothes, $3.20 to $3.49 on an ordinary overcoat and $5.29 to $5.70 on a heavy ulster. Somewhere between the extreme of these figures the truth lies, but it is clear that the new tariff will cause an increase in the cost of clothing, and that the increase will range somewhere between $1 and $5 on a suit of clothes and $1 and $7 on an overcoat. In the aggregate it will amount to a tax of several hundred million dollars on the American people and from five to fifty dollars on the head of every family.

The wool schedule is so bad, it is such an unblushing imposition on the consumer, it is such a raid of the private purse for the benefit of the wool interests, that the framers of the bill did not have the courage to continue it under the name it had always gone by, Schedule K, but changed it to schedule A1. The memory of 1912 at least haunted them if it did not deter them.

The Fordney bill promises to be the last great raid on the American people for the fattening of the special interests and the reward of campaign contributors. It promises to be the last great steal in the name of protection. If the voters next November do not have the good judgment to rise up and punish the betrayers of their public trust who sit in the house and senate and are forcing this put-your-feet-in-the-trough tariff through congress it is certain that when the country gets the full effect of the surrender to greed it will wreak its vengeance on the party responsible. It will take some tall stump eloquence to convince the people even this fall that an increase in the cost of living is to be regarded as a national blessing.

As Senator Townsend of Michigan said in a discussion of the tariff question the other day, the country has "suffered beyond calculation every time there is a general change in administration with a resultant rewriting of the tariff." Doubtless this will be the end. Too much has become plenty. The last dose is to be a sufficiency.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Friday, July 30, 1897

Benjamin Barrett was a Milwaukee visitor. H. G. Freeman and family returned from a camping trip to Green Lake.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franks on the previous Wednesday. J. A. Kimberly and W. Z. Stuart of Neenah were in Appleton on business.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Silfer left for Ashland for a several days visit.

Ernest Beveridge, who was threatened with pneumonia, was improving steadily.

Otto Kuehnstedt, who had been laid up with a sprained ankle was able to be about again.

James Lennon, Jr., of Minneapolis, was visiting his parents, Judge and Mrs. James Lennon.

Cheese sold on the Outagamie co. dairy board of trade at Hortonville at 7 1/2 cents per pound.

Bids for the construction of the new iron bridge at Lawrenceport were to be opened the following Wednesday.

C. B. Fride returned from New Richmond, where he delivered to Apple River Power Co. plans for the electrical transmission of power from the falls of Apple river to the city of New Richmond, six miles distant.

J. Stillwell Vilas of the Badger Paper Co. of Kaukauna said his company would take steps in the direction of rebuilding its plant until the matter of the waterpower on the Kaukauna Water Power Co.'s canal was definitely settled one way or the other.

M. Lyons and Rosemeiss Bros. were planning to erect two buildings on the lots between Bretschneider's furniture store and Schaefer Hardware Co.'s store.

Falling For the Gentle Gaffer

All of us, press and people, seem to like the gentle gaffer. If some fellow came along hopping on one leg with the statement that he was hopping a race between New York and San Francisco, we'd slip him a dime and listen open-mouthed to the tale of his conquest. It would be a sporting event. He'd manage to get his pictures into some of the papers, and the chances are that when he got out of town and let his other leg down he'd jingle more coin in his pockets than he could have earned in a week even if he had wanted to work.

There are more of them. There is the voluptuous lady with the Mona Lisa smile who is soliciting for an orphanage in the South Sea Islands. She gets the money. The tired business man loosens under the appeal of those large, deep eyes. There's the man who would bring a factory if inducements were sufficiently strong; the promoter of co-operative this or that, which shall put the greedy middleman out of business; the man with a patent who wants a factory built and capitalized for him; the pleasant companion who has a few acres of banana land and the polished stranger who has a few blocks of stock in a field where a guinea is being held out until he can let his friends in on the ground floor.

We fall for all of them. We love the gentle gaffer as much as we hate the rude, unmannerly holdup man. Old P. T. Barnum, himself a past master of the art of gentle grafting, knew us all as well as though he had carried the mud to make us. We like it. Or we wouldn't keep right on falling for it.—ROCK ISLAND ARGUS.

Counterfeiting

A secret service man tells of a man in Chicago near 50 who has spent about two-thirds of his life in prison as a result of an overpowering inclination to make counterfeit dimes. Every time he has been released he has gone back to dime-making, and been caught and returned to the penitentiary.

Another man, originally from Columbus, O., about 67 years old, has spent nearly 40 years behind bars for making lead dollars. He confesses that in all that time he has never succeeded in passing more than 100 of them.

"Counterfeiting is a mania," says the secret service man, "and once it seizes a man, he rarely gets over it. They tell me there's a rare thrill about seeing a counterfeit bill come from the press."

There must be. A young federal employee who was arrested recently for raising banknotes by pasting figures of larger denominations over the original imprint apparently had done it purely for the love of the game, without profiting at all. He had given away the bills he raised.

Thus most counterfeiting seems to be creative work gone wrong. If the counterfeiters could only be caught in time and made to use their constructive ingenuity in a better cause the world would be the gainer.—ABERLY PARK PRESS.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

RESTORATION OF HAITI SHOULD FOLLOW THAT OF SAN DOMINGO

That the promises made of restoration to the Santo Domingo people should be followed by a similar promise in the case of Haiti is the view of most of the newspapers which comment on the plan. They declare that this action would have a very beneficial result on the Latin American relations of the United States.

After all, in the opinion of the New York Times the American people naturally favor self determination and "the whole case is now referred back to the Dominicans themselves. If they have the earnest intention and ability to set up a stable government of their own, complete evacuation of their territory by American forces will surely follow. The good-will and unselfish purpose of our own government are clearly established by terms of the program for Santo Domingo which Secretary Hughes has successfully negotiated." There is general approval of the American plan the New York POST is convinced because "competent observers said that the most intelligent Dominicans should see the acquiescence is the shortest way of getting the marines out of their country, a result of which both nations desire. It is to be hoped that the modified programs will be so rapidly executed that our flag can be hauled down within a few months. But when we similarly out the leading strings in which we hold Haiti? The recent Senate report on Haiti called for a gradual restoration of the American forces but said nothing whatever about a termination of our occupation. Why cannot we give Haiti the same conditional offer of evacuation we gave the Dominican republic?" The Buffalo NEWS also points out that "we have been in there too long to step out unconditionally. The terms will not be considered too severe save by those who are ready to criticize any act of the administration on partisan grounds. Certainly the mark of an intelligent and wise administration's neglect or refusal to devise ways and means of taking our fingers from out of the Caribbean pie. Gradual reduction of our forces in Haiti was called for in the recent Senate report. That sounds well but does it mean anything? A more definite program with respect to withdrawal from Haiti is desirable and might well follow the announcement concerning Santo Domingo."

"The object of the occupation," explains the Indianapolis NEWS "was to create peaceful conditions in which the natives could erect and maintain a stable government. The United States has at no time had any other object in mind. The more intelligent of the Dominican leaders have seen the wisdom of the American policy and have striven to qualify for the responsibilities contemplated in it. In effect, the American government now says to the Dominicans: 'Show that you are capable of self-government. The burden of proof rests with the Dominicans and the method of proof is such as to help them gain strength as they make progress. For years they have had before them an example of law and order and they will merely have to demonstrate that they have been properly converted to the advantages of sound rule for the benefit of the majority. The plan is far better than turning the Dominicans loose for the United States can intervene at any point and save the country from the penalties of a serious revolution.' And the New York WORLD considers that "in form and substance this is a procedure that might well be adopted in Haiti and elsewhere in the Caribbean. It is a model because, instead of vague promises the agreement sets forth the precise steps which are to be taken in order to insure our withdrawal. The conditions may be different for Haiti, but whatever they are they should follow the precedent in naming the specific acts which the Haitians must perform if they wish us to withdraw."

That the original reason for intervention was "to continue the principle of the Monroe Doctrine" is recalled by the BALTIMORE AMERICAN. "German and other European loans had put the island in pawn before. Our intervention put it in pawn here with the prospects of redemption," he said. "The whole affair has been difficult for the United States. That it is now felt that the time has come to begin the restoration of self-government will occasion widespread satisfaction." The new plan likewise safeguards both the Cleveland PLAIN DEALER feels convinced and "it appears highly likely that settlement of the Dominican question is at hand and that a chapter of American statecraft which has proved disquieting to many Americans will soon be closed. There is no doubt that American intervention has been a blessing to the Caribbean republic."

Entire freedom may be slow, but it will be better, the Philadelphia PUBLIC LEDGER argues because "considerable time must elapse before there can be any final withdrawal of the American marines. These forces, however, are to be concentrated at certain points and the maintenance of peace and order delegated to the Dominican police. In a word, the whole agreement can be regarded as looking to a practical test of the ability of the government of the Dominican people to govern themselves and to form an administration capable of discharging the just obligations of a self-governed people. If they meet that test the United States is pledged to get out and leave the country to the Dominicans." In the view of the New York GLOBE "we police Santo Domingo as we might have policed West Virginia or the mining district of Illinois with the difference that in Santo Domingo we did not respect any individual or constitutional right that we found convenient. Our forces there were extra-legal and they acted as extra legal forces away act. They conferred numerous benefits, including roads, schools, modern hygiene and fiscal respectability, but they conferred them at points of bayonets which were often thrust home. There is nothing new in the latest Hughes plan. We simply require the Dominicans to set up a government willing and able to manage their fiscal affairs according to our desires. To all intents and purposes Santo Domingo is to remain an American dependency. Yet the actual withdrawal of the marines would be a distinct gain, since their presence in any Latin American country is invariably a constant cause of irritation and, at least occasionally, of tyranny and injustice."

The seizure was never justified, the New York TRIBUNE declares as "in occupying the republic Mr. Wilson showed disregard for treaty obligations and for the sovereign rights of a friendly nation. By undoing his work Mr. Harding will show by deeds to our Latin American friends that America is not afraid to right the wrong."

NEED NEW DICTIONARY

Paris—An American visitor to Paris suggests that a dictionary of English words adopted into the French language ought to be published for the use of English-speaking tourists. That sounds a bit complicated. What prompted his suggestion was noticing that many French restaurants are now hanging out a sign which says, sometimes in electric lights, sometimes in brilliant paint, often merely in print on cardboard, "Grill Room."

"I noticed it even on a little cafe in the Latin Quarter," he said. "It sounded so pretentious for such a small establishment to have a 'grill room' that I decided to try it. But inside there was nothing but the one room, with sandal floor, half of it cafe and the other half restaurant. 'Where is the grill-room?' I asked the proprietress.

"Monsieur would like to see it?" she answered smiling.

"And she led the way—into the kitchen, where she pointed triumphantly to a gigantic cookstove, elaborately ornamented with copper and brass trimmings.

"There it is, 'Monsieur,' she said proudly.

"That's what you call a grill-room?" I asked bewildered.

"Mais oui, Monsieur—Volla, regardez," and she pointed to a polished copper plate riveted to the top of the machine, on which was inscribed in burnished letters, "Grill Room."

"So a grill-room is a grill, and a 'dancing' is a dance-hall, and a 'lavatory' is a barber-shop and 'American' means an 'American finish' on your collars which in turn means a shine that hasn't been produced in an American laundry since 1893.

"Not to mention the ubiquitous 'American Bar' with its high soda fountain stools on which are perched gay ladies who are not precisely drinking soda-water. We certainly need a dictionary of our own language as she is spoke in Paris."

The Quat'Zarts ball comes but once a year, and nobody ever supposed it had any rivals in the whole world. But rumors are spreading about an institution that is, if possible, even more exclusive than the famous student revel, and which, far from being only annual, sometimes puts on a show semi-weekly.

As everybody knows, by this time, the sky itself rather cramps the Quat'Zarts, when you're talking about limits. Any obstacle that human ingenuity can devise is raised to keep the thing closed to everybody but art students. The place is kept secret as long as possible, likewise the date. Tickets are printed, and extreme precautions taken to prevent their falling into profane hands. And then, since tickets will go astray, whatever you do (there is always some indignant student who would rather have 100 francs or 100 francs than go to the ball) it is decreed that even ticket holders shall not enter unless they can pass a rigid test at the gate.

However, a few curious philistines manage to get by every year, and they behold a spectacle the like of which has never been beheld by mortal man since the Roman orgies. Everybody is in costume when the ball opens—the costumes being of a country and period prescribed by the committee—but as the evening wears on the costumes wear off, and when the end comes—but let us draw a veil (if we can find one) over the scene.

But now what do we hear? It seems that the haut monde, piqued, perhaps, at its exclusion from the artist revels, has started some considerable revels of its own. The Bois de Boulogne, it is said, is the scene. Tonight—these balmy summer nights, when all Paris that can afford a motor or a taxi goes out to enjoy the cool, mossy shades of the Bois. A few luxurious limousines glide down a by-path at top speed. Their occupants unobserved (at least they hope so) alight and make off into the woods, and then until early dawn an intricate passery might behold bacchanalian revels of most antique flavor.

Rumor mentions two popular stages of the opera and of the comedy stars as being the chief "nymphs," and the "satyrs," it appears, as almost as well known in big business.

Some moralists may be shocked, but just the same there is something rather enchanting in the idea of hard-boiled business-men (perhaps slightly competent) dancing a faun dance in the woods at midnight. How wonderful is nature!

Q. What is group life insurance?

M. P. N.

A. This is employees' life insurance paid for by the employer or the employees and the employer jointly.

Q. How much quinine is consumed in this country? N. H.

A. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1916, an amount of quinine was imported into the United States sufficient to make 2,200,000,000 average doses—an equivalent of 22 doses for every man, woman and child of the population.

Q. Who introduced drainage in agriculture? L. T. F.

A. Though practiced by the Romans and though the value of drainage was expounded by Walter Blythe in the middle of the seventeenth century, it was not until almost a century later that its importance began to be understood. James Smith of Deanston, Perthshire, Scotland, about 1823 led the way in modern practice of thorough drainage.

Q. Is there any product in the manufacture of which labor and materials are not the principal item? G. R. H.

A. The largest item of expense in the artificial ice industry is neither labor nor raw materials, as in most other manufactures, as the material being water costs little and the machinery does the work. The big item of expense is coal, with which to produce the heat to expand the steam and run the compressor ice-machine.

Q. How many lives were lost in the Halifax disaster? S. I. C.

A. In the explosion of war materials and fire at Halifax, December 6, 1917, 1500 persons were killed and 4,000 seriously injured.

Q. How many kinds of dogs are there? R. J. E.

A. Authorities list 51 breeds of dogs as comprising the category found at the leading dog shows held under the auspices of recognized kennel clubs. These are all that are used in the ordinary vocations or sports of life.

Q. Is there any difference between being a citizen of the United States and being a citizen of one of the 48 states? F. H. W.

A. A court ruling says "there is a citizenship of the United States and a citizenship of a state which are distinct from each other and which depend upon different characteristics and circumstances in the individual."

Q. When was Nell Gwyn on the stage? C. C. K.

A. She lived from 1650 until 1687. Her first known public appearance was in 1655. She retired from the stage in 1682.

Q. How tall is Pershing and what does he weigh? H. G.

A. General Pershing's height is 72 inches or exactly 6 feet and he weighs between 185 and 190 pounds.

Q. How fast can railroad trains run? D. R. B.

A. A modern express passenger locomotive can run 112 miles an hour on a straight, heavy-rail track if the engine is hauled by a train behind it to prevent its jumping the track. In actual practice 50 miles an hour is not often exceeded.

Q. Did a negro help lay out the city of Washington? D. S.

A. Benjamin Bennaker, a negro mathematician assisted in fixing the boundary lines of the District of Columbia and in laying out the city of Washington.

Q. How long have dice been used in gambling games? W. T. S.

A. There is no period of history, and no nation, in which some form of dice has not been used. The invention of dice is attributed to Palamedes about 1244 B. C., but the use of cubes with numbered sides for gambling purposes probably pre-dates that.

Q. If the letter I is considered a word, is the letter K a word also? R. M. K.

A. I is both a letter and a word, while K is a letter but not a word.

Q. How long have dictionaries been in use? E. P. L.

A. The first dictionaries were used by the Assyrians and Babylonians to explain not words but signs. The oldest surviving dictionary, compiled by Apollonius of Alexandria, in Augustus' time, is a glossary of Homer's words.

Q. Where was Chief Justice Marshall buried? L. S.

A. Chief Justice Marshall died July 6th, 1835 and was buried in Shockoe Hill Cemetery at Richmond, Va.

Q. What was the Devil's Bible? J. F. M.

A. Devil's Bible was the popular name of a manuscript Bible written on ass-skin. The name arose from a legend that the writing was the work of a man who by the Devil's help accomplished it in a few hours in order to save his life, but who in return became the slave of the Evil One.

Q. Where was tobacco first found? N. U.

A. Tobacco is a native of the Western Hemisphere, where the aborigines cultivated and used it from remote times. Its generic name is in honor of Jean Nicot, who introduced it into France in 1559 from Spain, where it had been brought from Santo Domingo in the same year. In 1585 it was taken to England by Sir Francis Drake, and the practice of pipe smoking introduced among the Elizabethan courtiers by Sir Walter Raleigh. Its use rapidly extended throughout Europe, and soon became prevalent among the Oriental nations.

Q. What is the difference in weight between sea water and fresh water? T. L.

A. Sea water will weigh about one and a half pounds more per cubic foot than fresh water at the same temperature.

Attend House Party For Girls At Green Lake

Mrs. A. L. McMillan and daughter, Clara, will leave early next week for Green Lake, where they will attend a house party given by the World Wide Guild of Wisconsin, a missionary organization, which has chapters of girls in all parts of the world. Miss Alma Noble of Buffalo, national leader of the guild, will be guest of honor at the house party from Aug. 7 to 10.

Following the house party the Baptist Young Peoples union will have a two day state convention. The Baptist assembly will convene following the convention. Many classes are offered at the assembly and a faculty of 16 men and women has been procured. Two new buildings have been added to the institute grounds and the second one will be dedicated on Aug. 20.

The Rev. A. L. McMillan will leave Monday for Chicago where he will enter the University of Chicago. He will take some special work in education.

FARMER AND SALOONIST GO BACK TO OLD JOBS

A real estate deal was consummated this week in which a saloonkeeper took to the country and a farmer who was previously a proprietor of a saloon went back to the saloon business.

George Striegel who for years conducted a saloon in Backville but traded his place a few years ago for a farm has now traded his farm for a saloon in Seymour. Farming, he says, is too strenuous. Peter Striegel, Seymour saloon proprietor, prefers the work on a farm and will therefore locate on the Striegel farm on the Ballard rd.

PICNICS

A group of neighbors at the Willows on Lake Winnebago had a picnic supper on the lawn at George Schmidt's cottage Thursday evening. The party included the families of Dr. A. E. Adst, Mr. Anderson, H. A. De Baurer, H. L. Dawson and George Schmidt.

The Shamrock Girl Scouts entertained their mothers at Happy Hut, Appleton Womens club cottage at Lake Winnebago, Thursday afternoon and evening. A picnic supper was served to more than 55 on the lawn of the cottage. In the evening the girls gathered around the campfire to sing. The feature song of the program was a welcome song for the mothers. Mrs. G. M. Schumaker, president of Appleton Womens club, was the guest of honor at the picnic.

Miss Mildred Faville of Milwaukee, Mrs. Florence Boyd Bynum of Ashville, N. C., and the Misses Perry who are the guests of Mrs. T. E. Orison were the guests of the Tourist club at its annual picnic on Tuesday afternoon. The guests were former members of the club. The picnic took place at the Harwood cottage.

Miss Florence Torrey entertained at a down river party on Thursday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Marcella Haller. The guests were eight girl friends of Miss Torrey.

PARTIES

Friends of Henry Valentine surprised him at his home, 1123 Gilmore st. on Thursday evening in honor of his fifteenth birthday anniversary. The party was given for him by his sister, Miss Christine Valentine. There were 15 guests and 15 good wishes were given the young man by his friends. Games were played during the evening. Prizes at carrying peanuts went to Hilary Valentine and Adeline Wettstein.

About 50 friends surprised Christine Johann at a miscellaneous show at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter.

THE "MOTHER OF MEDICINE"

Isis, the Queen and afterwards the Goddess, was called the "Mother of Medicine" in ancient Egypt, centuries before Christ, women were skilled in medicine. They knew the great value of medicinal plants.

Hippocrates, the "Father of Medicine" many centuries later, knew less of the merit of vegetable drugs than did the women of ancient times.

Lidia E. Pinkham, nearly fifty years ago, gave to women her Vegetable Compound, now known everywhere as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This is a woman's medicine for woman's ailments, prepared from medicinal plants.

Police Ask Drivers To Help Safety Movement

Give Pedestrians Chance to Get Across Street—Don't Turn Around

Many requests have been made of the pedestrians by George T. Prim, chief of police, in helping to bring about observance of the new traffic rules at the busy corners. Now Chief Prim has a few favors to ask of drivers to promote safety and prevent confusion at crossings.

His requests are:

1. That drivers of automobiles refrain from using the intersection at College-ave. and Oneida-st. and at the avenue and Appleton-st. as a place to turn around during the busy periods, especially on Saturday and Sunday nights. He asks also that if drivers can turn into the avenue from side streets conveniently at some other than these two that this be done.

2. That motorists keep their cars at a standstill after the whistle blows releasing them until those who already are on the crossing have a chance to reach the sidewalk. People begin to cross in safety but find themselves stranded in the middle of the street because the drivers speed across the instant they are released. It takes only a few seconds longer, the chief says, but the slight wait is worth while as a matter of safety.

People on the sidewalks are asked not to take advantage of this and scurry across after the whistle has blown to let the automobiles pass.

Memorizing of the traffic signals is one of the things some people find hard to do, but Chief Prim says everybody is making a splendid effort to cooperate with the traffic officers in handling the street corner problem. All should keep in mind this code, he says: One whistle, traffic north and south moves; two whistles, east and west goes. Pedestrians are expected to move the same way the traffic does, because the automobiles going, in the opposite direction are held back by the policeman's command until the throng has passed to the other side.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Olive Branch society of Mount Olive Lutheran church will hold an educational meeting at 7:30 Friday evening in the church parlors. The topic for discussion will be "Divorces" and will be discussed from a social and religious standpoint by the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer. Henry Wolff will be leader of the discussion following. A social hour will be held.

Falls From Tree

Fred Eggert, engineer at Lawrence college, suffered an injury to his foot Thursday evening when he fell about 80 feet from a tree he was trimming on the campus. The city ambulance was summoned to take him to his home, but he had been conveyed there in another automobile. It is said that no bones were broken but his ankle was painfully wrenched.

BOYS DETERMINED TO GO TO ONAWAY

"Camp Onaway or bust!" That is the spirit among a number of Boy Scouts who have set their hearts on going to camp. Some of the boys have had their dollars saved for this event for a long time and registered as early as two months ago. Others still are saving their money and will enroll shortly.

It is suggested that the boys enroll now in order to get a berth in the camp period they prefer. The first period which begins Aug. 1 has nearly enough boys registered now and unless the boys hurry they may lose their chance, is the warning of H. P. Buck, scout executive.

Boys who have not the $11 saved for their two weeks in camp and who are doubtful of getting enough money together before the opening of camp are asked to come to the boy scout headquarters and have a personal talk with Mr. Buck. Business men who are interested in the scout camp sometimes help the boys in a financial way. Now it is the task of every boy to earn as much as he can before he goes to camp, Mr. Buck said. If any boy fails to get enough together by

Aug. 7, he still has another chance for the second camp period which begins Aug. 21.

FLOCK OF MALLARD DUCKS IN WINDOW OF STORE

A flock of mallard ducks and their mother are disporting themselves in the window of a Galpins Sons Hardware company to the intense interest of passersby. Man's Trouble Arrested

"The past 4 years I have been going down, down, down with catarrh of the stomach and had to give up work a year ago because of my weakened condition. I suffered terribly from bloating and colic attacks. May's Wonderful Remedy was recommended to me. I took a course of it and am now feeling fine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—For sale at all druggists. adv.

FARMER AND SALOONIST GO BACK TO OLD JOBS

A real estate deal was consummated this week in which a saloonkeeper took to the country and a farmer who was previously a proprietor of a saloon went back to the saloon business.

George Striegel who for years conducted a saloon in Backville but traded his place a few years ago for a farm has now traded his farm for a saloon in Seymour. Farming, he says, is too strenuous. Peter Striegel, Seymour saloon proprietor, prefers the work on a farm and will therefore locate on the Striegel farm on the Ballard rd.

CAPACITY CROWD ENJOYS PROGRAM OF CHAUTAUQUA

Randall Parish is to Feature Friday's Program at Kaukauna

Kaukauna—A capacity house greeted the artists on the first number of the chautauqua which opened here Thursday evening and made a good start toward the success of the undertaking this year. The program opened with accordion selections by Signor Belhno who revealed the possibilities of the accordion in the hands of a master.

Tom Corvine, initiator, was second on the program and kept his audience in a jovial mood for his imitations, at the same time slipping in short interesting talks of cheer and optimism. His imitation of a dog fight was fine.

Mr. Corvine said that to make dogs fight one must "sic 'em" into it. If people would put more "sic 'em" into their lives and into their work, their attempts at success would be far more pleasing, he said.

Miss Esther Hildebrandt read "Humoresque." She was assisted by Leo Braverman, violinist. The two entertained with violin and piano selections following the reading.

Randall Parish, writer, lecturer and orator, will feature Friday afternoon and evening's program. He spoke on the subject "Your Town and Mine" in the afternoon and is to give a lecture equally as good Friday evening. The Girvin artist trio will appear in a concert to open the program. William Rogerson, tenor, will offer part of the program.

CITY MIGHT BUY 5-ACRE PARK NEAR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Education Meets Monday to Consider Purchase of Property

Kaukauna—Business of importance will be brought up at the meeting of the board of education next Monday evening. A deal whereby the school board becomes the owner of property on the island adjoining the new high school is being negotiated. The deed for the property made out in favor of the school has been received and will be turned over to the board at its meeting.

The city then will own about five acres of land which can be used to realize the dream of a beautiful park about the new high school. The land includes a track lying west and south of the high school for several hundred feet where Kenn and Co. coal and wood yards and office stands, then 550 feet to the east of the proposed high school, north of the tall race and south of the present school property.

The property at present is owned by the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal Co. With the new addition it will be possible to provide recreation ground for the high school students, a running track and small sized football field. When the ultimate plan of putting in retaining walls, trees and shrubbery is realized, Kaukauna will have one of the prettiest community centers imaginable.

HER 7 CHILDREN
INSPIRE HER TO INVENT NEW TOYS

Mrs. Leslie Ward Hussey's
Greatest Advertisers are
Her Youngsters

BY MARIAN HALE

Mrs. Leslie Ward Hussey of Nashville, Tenn., is mother of seven children, and the children made her the mother of invention as well.

Every mother knows being an inventor is developing one of the many sidelines her job demands, but usually her inventions receive only local recognition.

However, the seven little Husseys banded themselves into a force of advertisers and pluggers, and they made their mother's inventions famous.

Mrs. Hussey has invented some brand new toys, Kunning Kat and Korner Kid.

Closings of these newcomers reveal they are snappy, clubby looking folk bristling with personality what have the substantial virtues of endurance and service as well.

As the name implies Kat is a feline inspired by the triangle. His interior is cotton, but his exterior is gray mohair—mothers will appreciate his non-soluble qualities.

His eyes the red buttons his nose mouth and ears are outlined with yellow silk.

The Kid is composed largely of corn cobs, but that gives a pleasant feeling of squareness. He wears a chocolate suit and his buttons are red.

The Kat and Kid bring with them their own literary background and family tree in the shape of a queer looking book, the Kat a Korner Book.

This is a complete history of their lives and adventures up to the present, written by a sister of Mrs. Hussey and illustrated by Mrs. Hussey, who is also an artist.

"In my brood of seven," Mrs. Hussey explains, "there were always seven sets of toys to be mended and seven broken hearts when mishaps occurred."

"I used to set arms and legs, perform the most amazing feats of amputation and plastic surgery—in fact I did everything but gland transportation for those toys."

"But all the time I used to wish for toys that wouldn't break. Then I exercised my ingenuity and Kat and Kid were the result."

"My children loved them. They seemed to fit easily into their arms and their imagination. Then other children wanted them and before I knew it, I was forced into business."

"My one hope for my product is that it will give as much relief to other mothers as it did to me, and that other children will take as much pleasure with them as mine have."

"Kat and Kid are to save work for mothers as well as to entertain the children."

13-Year-Old Boy Youngest
Dry Raider

Lexington, Ky.—Howard Unthank, 13 years old, of Lexington, is believed to be the youngest prohibition raider in the country.

Howard, who is the son of Prohibition Enforcement Officer B. F. Unthank, is taking an active part in the campaign now being waged against dry law violators. He has for the past several months been accompanying his father on raids and has participated in more than 50 seizures.

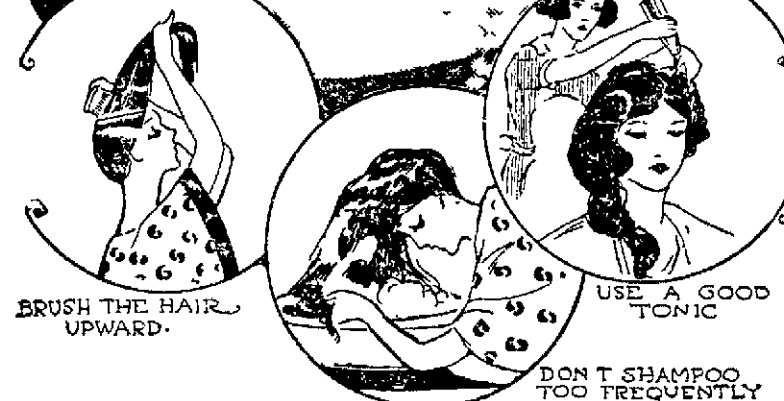

He has to his credit the single-handed capture of a moonshine runner at Brooklyn Bridge. He headed off in an automobile and brought in at the point of a revolver one of a party of moonshiners who had sneaked past the raiding party and who was about to make his getaway.

LEARN A WORD
EVERY DAY

Today's word is INCALCULABLE. It is pronounced in-kal-ku-luh-bil, with the accent on the second syllable. The i and first a are short. The u is the u in unite, and the final a is the a in ask.

It means—beyond calculation or reckoning, not to be calculated. It is a combination of in, meaning not, and calculable, meaning capable of being reckoned. Calculable comes from the Latin calculare, obtained from calculus, a pebble. Pebbles were used by the Romans in reckoning. The word is used in the following sentences: "The harm would result from a prolonged strike of the nation's railroads is incalculable."

NEED GOOD HEALTH FOR BEAUTIFUL HAIR

BY MARY NASH

Actress in "Captain Applejack,"
Famed for Beauty of Her Hair

Good health is the first requisite for beautiful hair for the hair is an unfailing barometer, registering the physical condition.

Every healthy woman may have smooth glossy lustrous hair if she will give it care. Hair not cared for, no matter how plentiful is never beautiful.

The scalp must be kept clean and free from dust. This means the hair must be brushed daily with a clean brush. Brush it upward instead of down. This will keep it from becoming packed down to the head.

Brushing spreads the natural oil of the scalp and gives it a soft satiny appearance. This makes it unnecessary to shampoo the hair so often. Frequent washings are not recommended because they rob the scalp of its necessary oil.

If you will separate your hair and rub the scalp with a coarse Turkish towel you can remove much dust and keep your scalp free from dandruff.

For the average woman once a month is often enough to shampoo. If the hair is excessively oily this should be corrected by a tonic.

Use only the purest soaps. An excellent soap is made by melting a bar of pure castile soap in a quart of boiling water. This may be delicately perfumed if you like.

Use a good reliable tonic once or twice a week and massage it carefully into the scalp. There is no better hair-grower than vaseline or crude oil but in using these care should be taken they are applied only on the scalp and not allowed to get on the hair.

Air and sunlight are absolutely necessary. When at home it is well to let your hair hang unconfined frequently and give it a sun bath whenever you have time.

Regular clipping of the hair is advisable. While it is a good plan to go to a hairdresser and have regular hair treatments, practically any woman can get the same results for herself at home.

FIGURED CREPE

A figured crepe de chine frock owes much of its charm to the collars and cuffs which adorn it. They are of white organdie, arranged in large folds. The cuffs reach the elbow and the collar makes something very similar in effect to the old-fashioned bertha.

COAT OF TAN

A coat of tan is not nearly so becoming as some other coats that might be mentioned and it certainly is much harder to get rid of. Beauty doctors are putting out lotions supposed to protect the skin as effectively as the old veil used to do and to have a soothing effect as well.

FRENCH PERFUMES

French perfumes have been reduced in price, until they are practically within the reach of every woman. They come in bottles of every size and shape and with every type of decoration. Sachets, too, in all the favorite brands are obtainable.

Adventures Of
The Twins

King Courageous, the real king of the Korsknotts and the Diddyvers, spoke kindly to Nancy and Nick. "My dears," said he, "it is due to your bravery and wit that I have been released from the spell that bound me. And thanks to you, also, my son, the prince and his sweetheart, Princess Therna have been made happy, for they will be married."

"Now I shall give you your choice of three wishes. First, if you so desire you may stay here and live happily with me in the Castle of Mirrors, which is my real home. Nick shall have the horse that shines like gold and goes like the wind, and Nancy shall have a pony that shines like silver and goes like lightning. You shall have six movies a week and have a hundred lollipops a day."

"Second, if you would rather have it so you may ride for a year and a day in my noble ship and see the wonders of the world."

"Third, if you so wish it, one of you may rule over the Diddyvers and the other may rule over the Korsknotts while my son and I are away making war on Twelve Toes the Sorcerer and all his wicked relatives. Besides I must decide what to do with these two imposters King Indig and King Verdo. They, too, must be punished."

"Do we have to take one of the three wishes or may we make a wish of our own?" Nancy asked.

"Anything you like, my dear," smiled King Courageous.

"Then," said Nancy, brightly, "please don't punish anybody, and let Nick and me go home in our Green Shoes. We had to walk here over the Seven Mountains and Seven Valleys, but when we go back we may just make a wish, the Fairy Queen says, and whish—we'll be there!"

"Well, well well!" said the king. "What kind hearts you have. It shall be as you wish. Goodbye, little ones."

"You have been very brave and made us all very happy. When we have conquered Twelve Toes and broken his magic the prince and I shall return. He will marry the princess and rule over one of my kingdoms. We shall end our days in happiness and peace. Now good by, again." And he kissed them both.

TESTED RECIPE

HOT CHICKEN SANDWICHES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

These sandwiches are sufficient for luncheon or supper as the main dish. They use any left over cold meat as well as chicken—and the bread may be stale, but not too dry.

The proportions given will make six good sized sandwiches:

12 slices bread
1 cup chopped chicken
Salt and pepper to taste
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk or cream
2 tablespoons butter
Butter for frying the sandwiches
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cook the chopped chicken in the butter and milk or cream until creamy, but not too dry. Spread between two slices of bread and trim off a little of the crusts.

Beat the eggs slightly, add the one and one-half cups of milk and salt. Dip each sandwich in the egg and milk and cook in a pan until brown on both sides, using as little butter as possible. Serve once, garnished with a little parsley or watercress. (Cut this out and paste it in your cook book.)

KING SETS POLITICAL PRISONERS AT LIBERTY

By Associated Press
Bucharest, Rumania—King Ferdinand's recent amnesty decree, proclaimed on the occasion of his daughter's marriage to King Alexander of Yugoslavia, embraces a wide variety of offenses and already has resulted in the liberation of 200 of the 248 Communists on trial for plots against the government.

The following offenses are included within the decree: Clandestine and public propaganda against social and political order; spying during peace time; mutiny; electoral and newspaper offenses; participation in strikes against the state, and certain military crimes and misdemeanors.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

It is well life in the South Seas is so simple and not complicated by social or financial pressure, otherwise their young married set would have a difficult time, for the average age of the bride is 12, and that of the bridegroom 17.

Usually the woman does the proposing and the man waits to be chosen.

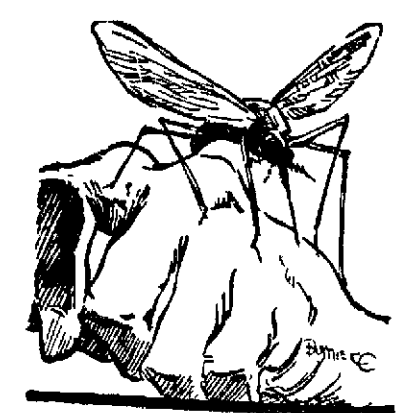

NATURE FACTS

ABUNDANCE OF LIFE

By Prof. M. J. Elrod

It is impossible for people who have given little attention to the matter to understand how rapidly animals would multiply if all descendants were given food and favorable conditions so as to increase in numbers without loss.

Frank E. Leitz in a bulletin deal ing with one of the common mosquitoes, culex, which may have as many as six broods in a season estimates that a single female might produce, if none were destroyed, in a single season, more than 188 billion.

It is estimated that a single bacterium, say of pneumonia dividing approximately every 20 minutes would, in some 21 hours if none were killed, produce about nine and a quarter quinquillions.

L. L. Woodruff who isolated a "wild" Paramoecium (a one celled animal visible to the naked eye) from a laboratory aquarium in 1907 and studied its descendants through 5,000 generations, until 1915, states that the protoplasm of the original cell possessed the potentiality to produce in five years, cells to the number represented by two raised to the 3,029th power, or a volume of protoplasm not less than 10 multiplied by itself 1000 times the volume of the earth during five years.

At the normal rate of increase, if none died a pair of English sparrows would in 25 years give one sparrow to every square inch in the United States.

Moscow—Fifteen thousand four hundred Russian babies born in this year of the famine will be dressed from top to toe from shirt to socks in warm American clothes. This number of layettes for future Sonia and Evans has already been invoiced to the American Relief Administration and they are being distributed from its warehouses at Moscow to the uttermost limits of the famine and plague stricken districts. In addition to these there have been received some 18,000 clothing outfits in assorted sizes for larger children.

YOUR JOB

BY ELIZABETH ARNOLD

One of the greatest troubles with women is that they dramatize themselves on their jobs. They constantly see themselves repeating some other woman's success. Let some woman make a success and there is immediately an army of women, regardless of their experience or ability clamoring for the same kind of job.

There is no need to rush to New York to do something big. There is plenty of worthwhile work to be done on Main Street if you have the ability and vision to find it. All good things are a growth and industrial peace, one of the biggest jobs the world has ever faced, can only be brought about by individuals putting the right moral spirit into the little jobs of every day life.

LONDON HOLDS RECORD
FOR SOOT AND DIRT

By Associated Press
London—London leads the world in fog, smoke and soot. During a single month, according to the department of health, 47 tons of dirt were dumped from the air upon the unsuspecting head of the populace. Of this mass approximately twenty seven and one half tons were soluble and nineteen and one half tons were insoluble, and consisted of tar, carbon and grit.

London is no place for white collars, straw hats, Palm Beach suits or light colored gowns. These soon assume a black hue which even the laundries find it difficult to remove. Hat-makers are overcoming the dirt by making this summer's hats a deep black.

We Guarantee, Madam
to stop falling hair
in 3 weeks

—to grow new hair
in 90 days
this new way

or money
refunded

Science discovers falling, lustreless hair due to simple infection (Sebum). Now quickly overcome. Hair actually grown on 91 heads in 100!

World-great dermatologists are now employing a new and radically different formula in hair treatment, with almost unbelievable results.

This is to offer you an opportunity to test it in your own home. Note that it is guaranteed absolutely. Guaranteed to stop falling hair in three weeks; to start a growth of new hair—lustrous, beautiful, youthful—in 90 days.

If it fails, it costs you nothing. Your own druggist signs the guarantee.

Why 6 Women in 8 have Dull, Unattractive Hair

Science has recently discovered that hair roots seldom die. They can be revived—given new life.

We have proved that conclusively by growing hair on 91 heads in 100. The method we use is new. Years of exhaustive laboratory experiments were spent perfecting it.

Now world-great dermatologists employ these ingredients:

Falling hair, dull, lifeless hair; hair without sheen or luster—6 women in 8 have it.

The reason is a very simple infection. An infected scalp oil called Sebum. This new way quickly overcomes it. It starts to act instantly.

The Infected Sebum in Your Hair
Sebum is an oil. It forms at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to supply the hair with oil.

But frequently it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles and plugs them. Go to the mirror and you can see it in your hair, either in the form of dandruff or in that of an oily excretion at the hair roots.

Germs by the millions breed in it, then feed upon the hair. Soon your hair begins falling. You note too how lifeless it appears. In a short time, all the natural luster and beauty are gone.

But—and note this scientific fact—remove the Sebum and the hair reverts back to the softness and brilliancy it displayed when you were a school girl.

The Van Ess Treatment accomplishes that result. We know you will doubt it. So we guarantee it.

New hair grown in 90 days. Falling hair stopped in two weeks. Your own druggist gives you our guarantee to do these things. He signs it. If we fail, your money will be refunded without argument.

Where to Obtain the Treatment
We urge you to give this new way a fair trial. Remember, you take no risk.

Go to any druggist or department store today. Ask for the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. Written guarantee accompanies it.

Pay Nothing

Unless we grow hair. The Van Ess treatment is absolutely guaranteed. You are the sole judge. The warrant is signed by your own druggist. You assume no risk making this test.

Note This New Way

—It Massages the Treatment Directly into the Follicles of the Hair

You can see from illustration that Van Ess is not a "tonic." It combines a massage and lotion in one treatment. You do not rub it in with your fingers. Each package comes with a rubber massage cap. The nipples are hollow. Just invert bottle. Rub your head, and nipples automatically feed lotion down into follicles of the scalp where it can do some good. At the same time the nipples give your head a massage. It is very easy to apply. One minute each day is enough.

Irish Troubles Reveal Succession Of Blunders By British Government

Menasha Pastor Reviews Recent Developments on War Torn Ireland—Religious Differences Are of Little Account.

(This is the second of a series of articles on conditions in Ireland, written by the Rev. S. G. Ruegg, former pastor of the Congregational church at Menasha, who is spending several months in Europe.)

S. J. Ruegg

All eyes are on the Irish political situation today. A French writer recently said that the whole question was the biggest international imposture ever foisted on the people. That is severely extreme. English criticisms are bitter. Irish comment is colored highly and a lone American tramping through this remarkable island finds it difficult to give the sort of a pen picture of her political conditions.

Of course they are in a chaos. The Irish problem dates back to the founding of the Oxford university. That was founded in 1167. England entered Ireland in 1169. Her problem is that of national existence chiefly agricultural. The slow evolution of this idea has exasperated the Irish and riding on the wave of modern times they launched out in 1916 to take things in their own hands. Some writers say that the trend of the times is toward particularization in science, politics, art and religion. In international matters you see the break up of empires and the precipitation of small nations the getting out of languages from the garret of the past and the reviving races and emphasizing and exaggerating their importance.

This is the trend of the times. Nationalism is very acute after the war, when we all thought that it would play a minor roll and the international mind would have the main line instead of the side track. This is no place to give any history. Some observations are in order that may throw some light on the question. The first thing that strikes you is the revived Irish language. Most of us never knew that there was such a thing as a distinct Irish tongue. Well, there is. I became aware of it first in the post office. You cannot mail any English postage stamps without the Irish words printed on them "The Irish Provisional government." The receivers of letters in England must all pay double amounts when stamps arrive without these words. The letter rate is 50 per cent higher too in so far that the new provision government is naturally in need of funds and it gets this amount. If we are mistaken England fixes the postage rate in her colonies but she has made an exception with Ireland. It shows how fast she is traveling. Again you see the Irish street names above the English names and these names of streets have existed for many years. We are told that in five years they will all teach the Irish language in the schools of the Emerald Isle.

This movement for the Irish language was started about the nineties with the inauguration of the Gaelic league. This league had three epistemic promoters. Douglas Hyde a Protestant the son of a minister, a graduate from Trinity college, Dublin, was the first president. That refutes the notion that this movement is fostered merely by the Catholic people. Hyde was a brilliant scholar. He had the vision of George Moore another great Irish Protestant who a few years before rescued the Irish language from oblivion.

Another member of the trio was Father O'Growney a young Irish priest splendid in outlook, sensitive poetic a spirit of equality and fraternity with the vision of a prophet and he took matters so too heart that it preyed on his physique and he died in California from whence a message was sent: (His spirit lives, one life of his only gone) John McNeill from Ulster was the third promoter of the league. This league was more than a mere organization, it understood that Ireland had become Anglicized. Irish ideals were buried and they said: Now is the time to resurrect things and they did. There were no religious or political strings attached to it and Catholics and Protestants were in it though some of the extreme clericals tabooed it because they thought it would soften down religious fervor for the mother church.

The most striking fact to an American concerning the political confusion in Ireland is the general acknowledgment by the rank and file that it is honeycombed with British blunders. I have this statement from unionists and loyalists living in North and South Ireland. The rank and file would of course say that but the best men say this and it is corroborated by English people I have met. That indictment is easy to make but it seems there is more truth in it than most English would like to admit. England is credited with remarkable statesmanship. Her blunder is to muddle along. She did that in the Boer war and for a year in the great war and was astonished and is astonished today how we got under way so fast. She muddles and blunders through things but gets there. It goes with her stoic unemotional mind. She does not understand the Irish, a highly emotional, imaginative human people. The Irish always get into the people. They have no facility to hide their feelings.

Irish revere Gladstone who fought all his life for home rule. Gladstone was deeply religious and was a Protestant who loved Irish people. They admire Parnell whose fine monument stands in Dublin on Sackville street where they sacked hotels recently and burned the Y. M. C. A. and did millions of dollars damage. But to be more specific, a fair question is to ask how the present state of affairs came about. Aquilth wanted a national program for Ireland in 1912. That was under way when the war broke out. For years the Irish problem had been a pawn in Parliament and the political hucksters traded with it. Then the Irish Sinn Feiners took matters in hand themselves. It was a daring thing to do. De Valera was their leader. No these political men were not all Catholics. I found Presbyterian men of Ulster had the same political aspirations. The thing they did to move the English government was to shed blood and they were where the English absolutely failed in the eyes of her own supporters. She began to move to give Ireland freedom at the price of blood, an insane thing to do because it touches the morale of a people.

Just make up your mind about it yourself. Put yourself in the place of these Irish people. They buy things with blood. Here enters the tragic history of the Irish constabulary. This organization which has existed for 63 years has now gone out of existence. Most of the men were former land picked from every corner of Ireland and they were loyal to the crown. It should be said that most of them were Catholic. They kept order everywhere and were the protection for the people. But Dillon in 1919 uttered a prophecy that he would some day destroy the Constabulary when he got the power and the Sinn Feiners took their impulse from him. There were 100 officers and 12,300 in the ranks.

The extermination of this constabulary is the blackest page of Irish history. The British Labor commission report before me says that the policy pursued by England in this matter according to the evidence "is more than sufficient to justify the strongest condemnation of the policy of the British government." It did not have to be. The Irish republican army was formidable. It was so because it was everywhere and no where. Had it been visible the English could have coped with it better. But they showed us place after place where masked men would appear in the crowds right down town and attack the constabulary. A crowd is usually a safe place in fact when Sir Henry Wilson was killed in London twelve men risked their lives to apprehend the rascals. But in Cork the Republicans would attack the constabulary, slug and kill them and escape in the crowd and the rank and file would not consider it an outrage on their own countryman.

Naturally these men of the constabulary lost their nerve and when they refused to serve, the British government introduced English soldiers and these were often the best men and then again undisciplined men who when stabbed in the back began reprisals. There were 258 secret assassinations. The government simply aggravated the case by searching parties through the Black and Tan soldiers. These latter men were police and khaki men together and hence the name.

"It is believed by many that the government made a huge mistake by releasing De Valera but he has spent his shot anyway by now. I heard him in Cork and stopped opposite the place where he did and had arranged an interview with him on Sunday morning. I was to speak at a chapel opposite the hotel where he stopped. But his majesty was not in and had gone to Queenstown. He spoke on the street, however, that night at 9:30 p. m. That would be an unearthly hour in America in fact the times are out of joint here so much that the railroad companies have big bulletins up: "The times are subject to alteration" and they are truly prophetic in more ways than one.

There was not much cheering when De Valera spoke. Three men preceded him. They all began with Irish or Gaelic when they talked to capture the real Irish vote. When De Valera stood up some of the girls said: "Speak up, you long nose." We found that his speech was moderate, in fact, Cork that once honored him, had little use for him. They accused him of collecting money in America and then pocketing it and now they are laughing that the election repudiated him and his consorts. A cartoon appeared not long ago and made him appear at a game with the football at his feet saying: "If I can't be president, captain and umpire at the same time I won't play ball at all."

We also heard Miss Mary McSwiney that same night. Sister of the late Lord Mayor. Mary is a radical from way back. It is interesting to note the rise of women in Ireland. We heard thirteen year old girls talk with an intelligence that would put some of our girls to shame. All except the high school sophomores in Appleton. They have all the rest beaten by a mile. Miss McSwiney opened all the old English sores and the fight was on with their old arch enemy.

A word needs to be said here on the religious situation though that forms a separate chapter by itself but in so far that some political threads are interwoven with it, it belongs here. The political leaders claim that since 1916 the religious element became a minor issue. I am of the impression that it is in the hands of the extremists on both sides of the fence. We talked with many on the matter. The keeper of the Colthurst estate on which the Blarney castle is located told me that he with many other Catholics would now and then leave the church when their spiritual advisers talked politics. The English produce all sorts of evidence that the clergy opposed conscription in the war with the penalty of excommunication and eternal damnation for those that fell in line. I have no proof of this but the rank and file of the Catholics with whom we spoke said that as long as the Pope of Rome spoke ex-cathra to the world as a spiritual adviser his orders would be considered infallible but nothing directed to a class or one country would pass muster. They distinguish keenly between Vatican and the Pope's leadership just as all intelligent Catholics do of America and it has for years seemed perfectly absurd to me to hear men speak of political supremacy in America of the church in question.

Again the Catholic church has opposed socialism and De Valera though a Catholic is an out and out socialist linked up ever with the I. W. W. in the latest move and is a revolutionist. I have it on good authority that when the bishops met some weeks ago to take their stand on the Treaty which was given to the people that Collins, also a Catholic, went to them and begged them if they passed any pronouncement to oppose the Irish treaty, for he was sure that if they would vote for it that the people would then surely oppose it.

This much is clear. Ireland is coming to her day. The English are not hopeful that they will reach a successful conclusion. They sit back and say: See these Irish never agree. They say they are like Mike who when asked what party he belonged to, said: "To the party agin the government". And this they have been so long in the habit of doing that they think they will never agree. But we Americans are more hopeful. Personally I believe that the Irish will get somewhere though they are in a desperate plight just now.

Ireland is engaged in nation building. England has no exclusive nationalism. The more Ireland develops within the more she will follow English ideals even though the English politicians have not permitted this very much in the Emerald Isle. There is room in Ireland for many of the Sinn Fein ideals. England does not want uniformity. That is death. Diversity is her life. That is why she has outdistanced all other nations in colonization. Ireland will yet come to her own.

Cardinal Logue of Manchester, an Irish prelate recently sent a public letter to the press in which he said that what they had hoped and sighed for now seems to be within their grasp. What was offered in the treaty was way beyond their dreams and evoked the admiration of all friends of Ireland. But through divisions and lack of cooperation, the possibilities now offered were in danger of slipping away through an insane internal

HARD TO ENFORCE NEENAH'S LATEST LAW ON TRAFFIC

Oshkosh and Appleton Both are Considering Arterial Highway Systems

Neenah's police force is experiencing considerable difficulty enforcing the city's new traffic ordinances which make North and South Commercial-st. arterial highways and which prohibit turning automobiles at the corner of Commercial-st. and Wisconsin-ave. Many motorists know of the ordinance but are not sure of its application and as a result there has been much confusion.

Signs now are being prepared to direct the traffic. Vehicles approaching Commercial-st. from either direction must come to a full stop before they attempt to cross it or join the traffic on it.

Oshkosh city commissioners now are considering an arterial system which will make traffic more safe on the heaviest traveled streets. It also is planned to prohibit vehicles from turning to the left in the busiest sections of the city.

Among the Oshkosh streets which probably will be designated "arterial highways" are Main-st., Jackson-st., Algonquin and Washington-blvds., Park-ave., Merrill, High, South Main, Oregon, Waugoo and Otter-sts. A similar system has been suggested for Appleton and there is a probability that it will be worked out by L. C. Smith, city planner. Among the street which have been suggested as through traffic avenues here are College-ave., either North or Pacific-sts., Union-st., Rankin-st., Secor and-ave., Richmond-st., Oneida-st., Lake-st., either State or Walnut-sts., Prospect-st. and Second-st.

CLOSE TRAPPING SEASON ON RATS IN THIS COUNTY

Sportsmen Agree With Conservation Commission to Conserve Animals

Trapping of muskrat, coon, otter and beaver will be prohibited in Outagamie county this season and until the Wisconsin conservation commission decides the time is suitable for again permitting trapping, it was decided at a hearing in the courthouse Wednesday evening. Several sportsmen and trappers said that the number of fur-bearing animals in this county would be materially increased if the trapping season is closed for one year.

The conservation commission will not close trapping seasons in any county without the consent of the sportsmen in those communities. In several counties it was found to be inadvisable to prohibit muskrat trapping because of an over abundance of rats. When rats become too numerous they are unable to find food and often cut up the bogs which are filled with deep holes and as a result are washed away in high water. Rats then leave that locality and many of them die.

W. E. Barber of the conservation commission conducted the hearing here.

MELANCHOLIA IS BLAMED FOR DEATH

Brother of Appleton Man is Found Dead in Garage at Marinette Home

Lee E. Joyce, 37, brother of Walter Joyce, 913 Sixth st., was found in a garage at his home in Marinette, with a revolver clutched in his fingers early Wednesday morning. Mr. Joyce is said to have been suffering with melancholia since last December and had left the city several times in hope of bettering his condition.

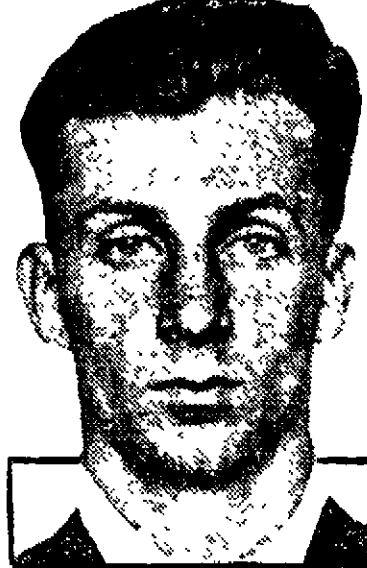

Mr. Joyce left his home about 6 o'clock Wednesday morning and went to his garage, apparently to prepare for his day's business with the Home Tea Co. A few hours later an employe found his lifeless body huddled in one corner of the building.

The decedent had lived in Marinette for about 15 years and was one of the best known men in the city. He is survived by his widow, one small daughter, three brothers, Walter of Appleton, Frank and Edward of Illinois.

WORLD SEARCH IN MURDER CASE

WALTER CASTOR

ARTHUR CASTOR

San Francisco—Police throughout the world have been asked by San Francisco authorities to arrest Walter Castor. The hunted man is wanted for the murder of Mrs. Anne Wilkens, victim of a slaying believed by the police to be a duplicate of the famous Carl Wanderer case in Chicago.

Mrs. Wilkens and her husband Henry Wilkens, were riding in an automobile when two men held them up. One of the attackers shot Mrs. Wilkens.

The arrest of Arthur Castor followed. Authorities gave out a confession in which Arthur charged that he and his brother, Walter, had been hired by the dead woman's husband to perpetrate a fake hold up. The husband was arrested, although he denied the charge.

Arthur Castor's defense is that he was engaged merely to drive the bendit car and did not know that a slaying was contemplated. He states that he doesn't know whether his brother or Wilkens fired the fatal shot.

Extent Of Hubby's Check Doesn't Guage Happiness

Excellent Advice is Offered in Last Letter on Family Budgets

Letters to the Contest Editor on whether $2,600 is enough in which to live comfortably have been interesting and instructive. The arguments for and against seem logical when you take into consideration the different standards of living of the people who answered, their training and natural ability as managers. In regard to managing a house, this question always arises: How many women are prepared to spend the household money wisely?

The Contest Editor is inclined to believe with the several writers who have emphasized the fact that much depends upon woman's attitude toward her home and family responsibilities. The woman who loves her home and makes it a center of interest for her family is the one who usually gets along on much less money than the one who finds housekeeping a dull routine. No one should doubt that house keeping is a tremendous job and means hard work and careful planning, but the letters seem to verify the assertion that the happiest wives are not those who live in ease and "comfort."

THIS IS LAST LETTER

This is the final letter which the Contest Editor will print on the subject. The writer says that all happiness is not found in money which seems comforting to those of us who probably will never reach more than $2,600 a year. The letter follows.

Dear Editor: We think $2,600 would make every working man's family happy and comfortable. Of course, all those who have an income over that amount do not agree because money is not spent in the proper way. If saving is done at home and if the wife has any talent in housekeeping and economy, it is possible to live well. Most laborers do not get more than $1,600 a year and many of them are comfortable.

"Of course at $1,600 a year, the men will have to work as long as they are able, in order to save for the days when they cannot work. True happiness is not found in money for work is not a sad world for those of us who are not wealthy?"

"If the ladies whose husbands scold when the money is gone would keep a little book where everything is re-

FIELD MICE DAMAGE GRAIN IN RUSSIA

Moscow—Field mice and locusts have damaged millions of acres of grain in several Russian districts already seriously affected by last year's drought and famine, and which were expected this year to produce good crops.

A report of the bureau of agriculture states that more than 20,000,000 acres are in the belt affected by these pests. Locusts have swept in from Persia, and the field mice have not been far behind.

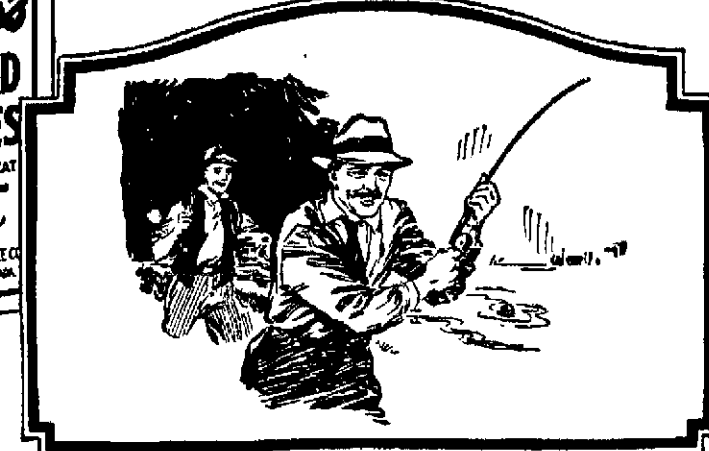

Chemical warfare squads mobilized to fight the plague have been greatly hampered in their work by lack of destructive chemicals.

corded about the expenditure of money including what the husband spends and where, the trouble would be stopped. No one will spend money foolishly if he is required to write it down.

Careful Housekeeper. The Contest Editor wishes to thank all those who have written letters concerning the amount of money on which a family can live. He also wishes to thank those of you who read them and discussed them in family and friendly circles.

Kellogg's SHREDDED KRUMBLES

deliciously Flavored
WHOLE-WHEAT

Keen For Endurance Tests!

It is no impossible task to build red-blooded health that will "carry on" far beyond the average years! You see examples of wonderful manhood and womanhood every day—men and women who got away to a flying start from early childhood; men and women whose parents saw that their nourishment built bone and muscle and fitted them to go into the world physically and mentally equipped!

School investigators find that a large percentage of deficient children were not born that way, but reached that state through lack of nourishing food! Children from the best homes suffer this great handicap as well as children who actually lack food! The responsibility of parents is tremendous! Devitalized foods on our tables today cannot promote health or physical fitness or brains!

Kellogg's delicious whole-wheat KRUMBLES—with the full, enticing whole-wheat flavor for the first time in food history—is the ideal food every child should eat every day. KRUMBLES nourish as no other food can, because they contain every vital food element!

KRUMBLES build strong, rugged bodies; KRUMBLES make red blood and bone and muscle! They put a child on its feet naturally, and they make it thrive and grow fine, physically and mentally.

KRUMBLES are a necessity for every member of the family, for they renew strength in men and women workers and they provide food that sustains the aged as nothing else can!

Your grocer sells KRUMBLES. Order a package today.

The only whole-wheat food with a delicious flavor!

Last Day For Mahendra

Today will be the last of Mahendra's engagement at Fischer's (Appleton Theatre), and judging from the amount of people he has met personally after the first evening performance it will be advisable for those who desire a personal interview to be at the first show this evening.

Mahendra's entertainment last night was even more interesting than previous ones as he went further into personal questions and surprised their writers beyond comprehension.

A new picture graces the screen today, a pathetic theme of tremendous appeal is May McAvoy's latest "Through a Glass Window." There are many interesting side lights to this picture, thrills on a roller coaster. Fragrant dough-nuts and coffee. An Italian American troubador, emerging from the quarter deck of a vegetable wagon. A little girl struggling to support a mother going blind and a too weak brother. "Through a Glass Window" is a gripping human interest story.

BEAR CREEK GIVES POWER FRANCHISE

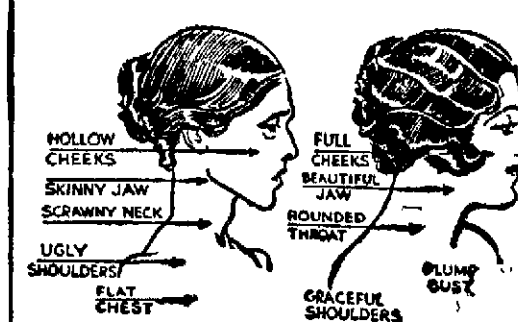

A franchise has been granted by the village board of Bear Creek to the Badger Light and Power Co. of Appleton to furnish electricity for street lighting and private lighting and power to the village. The current is to be purchased from the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power Co. A 23,000 volt transmission line is to be constructed from near New London to Bear Creek, via Sugar Bush. The route has not been definitely determined. Farmers along the line will be given an opportunity to purchase current from the company.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
What horrible and mysterious power was forcing the three Drake brothers.

HOBART, the Wall Street broker. ROGER, the scientist, and ANDREW, recently returned from Australia, to place themselves in ridiculous situations? Sedate, middle-aged and wealthy, the three were now terror-stricken. Some power had forced Hobart to deliver a mock speech in the public square. Roger to burlesque a scientific address, and Andrew to sit on the floor and play with toys. They were sane, and PATRICIA DRAKE, daughter of Hobart, secretly secured OWEN MILES, detective sergeant, and his colleague.

SCOTTIE Mc CREADY, to investigate. Miles is employed as a houseman and Scottie as a gardener. On his first morning, the latter, which Miles learns did not go through the mail, arrives and throws Hobart into a passion. Miles tells Scottie to watch MISS JERUSA DRAKE, spinster sister of the brothers whom he discovered in a wildly excited state late at night before an open grate in which she was burning papers of some kind.

GO ON WITH STORY
"Wednesday" night, here in the house. No one knows but me and I'll tell you about it later."

Miles continued his duties and no opportunity presented itself to speak to Scottie until lunch. As he served the mid-day meal Miss Drake announced:

"Ora Hawks has returned from her trip to California."

For a moment there was silence while Andrew ate unconcernedly. Roger was almost furtively regarding his brother. Finally he asked, with an embarrassed cough:

"You will call, Andrew, no doubt?"

"Why should I?" The other looked up coolly and then added with a short laugh, "I had almost forgotten her existence. Has she changed much?"

"Not in appearance," Miss Drake answered hastily with a slight frown. "She is coming for tea this afternoon, so you will be able to judge for yourself."

It was late afternoon when in answer to the summons of the scold he admitted the expected visitor. She was a stout, severely gowned woman of middle age with graying hair slicked back tightly beneath a small, stiff hat and a pair of shell-rimmed glasses athwart the bridge of an inquiring nose.

"My dear Ora! It is indeed a pleasure to welcome your return!" Miss Drake greeted her with a cool kiss on her cheek and turned to Miles.

"William, call Miss Patricia please, and Mr. Roger. I think you will find Mr. Andrew in the garden." Scottie and Andrew were standing deep in consultation over by the summer house and he had started toward them when he saw the visitor descending the steps of the side veranda. Her smile was somewhat grim as she advanced.

"How do you do, Andrew? Am I the last of your old friends?" "Ora!" Andrew Drake wheeled with her first words and held out his hand. Then, as he saw in her eyes an apologetic shrug for its begrimed state, he was careless in the balmy spring sunshine and both shirt-sleeves had been rolled to the elbow, but now he started hastily to pull them down. She noted the action and even from where she stood the detective could see the deep flush which mounted suddenly in her fat, round face.

"Andrew!" Her nasal tones were oddly broken and confused. "You really recognize me, then? I am not so very much changed?"

"How can you ask? I should have known you anywhere in the world!" he returned with suspicious fervor. Then he added hurriedly: "I'll get cleaned up at once and come in for tea, and we can have a good talk."

"I will wait for you," She turned and moved back slowly toward the house while Andrew stood as though rooted to the spot gazing after her.

"When she had disappeared a single comment from the man reached Miles's ears.

"Damnation!" "Look!" Scottie seized Miles's arm and his low voice sank to a husky whisper. "There, over the hedge!—Coming from the direction of the village. Who is it?"

Two indistinct shadows were moving along the walk and appeared to be engaged in an argument, for a man's rough tones mingled with a shrill, higher voice like that of an angry boy.

They crept step by step until they were within a few feet of the two.

"You'll lose out if you do, I tell you!" the heavier masculine tones growled. "What will you get out of it if you carry out your threat?"

"A fairish bit o' satisfaction, old dear." The mocking voice was that of a woman, not a boy, and the accent was unmistakable.

"I mean to get my bit out o' whoever the game is, no fear!" "There's no game, but I promised you a settlement, didn't I, if you would only be a little patient? Let me take you back to your car now like a sensible girl and I'll see you in town before the end of next week."

"You're Andrew Drake, himself!" Scottie breathed, but the woman was speaking once more.

"No game? Garn!" She laughed stridently. "I don't care tuppenny wot it is, but I'm going to have my rights!—Ow! far back did we leave the bloom'g car?"

They turned and moved back along the pathway in the direction from which they had come. Scottie straightened with a grunt. "Two women, eh? Our friend Andrew had an unlucky day. I think I can guess who this one was, just now: the lady you met yesterday."

"Yes," Miles replied. "It was Malzie."

CHAPTER IX
It was Hobart Drake's unbroken custom of years to return home immediately after the market closed at noon on Saturdays, but on the day following that of the arrival of the new gardener, lunchtime came and passed and he did not appear nor did any word come from him.

"There is a station taxi coming down the road and—yes, Hobart is inside!" exclaimed Miss Drake when tea was served.

"When Miles reached the library door once more the measured tones of Hobart Drake came distinctly to his ears.

"—Sorry, but there were many details to attend to in settling up my affairs."

"Settling up?" It was Andrew, and the devil-may care note had vanished from his voice.

"I am no longer a member of the Stock Exchange," announced Hobart Drake quietly.

"Of all the d-d fools!" Andrew exploded. "First Roger and then you, both of you lying down and taking it! By God, I thought there was more fighting blood in the family than that! You're afraid!"

It was still comparatively early when Miles was free to join Scottie. "There's only one new angle to consider," Scottie remarked at last. "That is Andrew's attitude in the matter. He's not thinking of the fresh gossip. It may be that he has made a good bit of money through Hobart's inside tips in the market and doesn't want to lose the graft."

"What was that?" "I didn't see anything."

"I thought a light winked twice down there by the gate."

They crept around the house and were skirting the hedge when a sudden movement behind a tree brought them to a halt.

"I—I ain't gwine to fish no gun!" A tremulous voice spoke out of the darkness.

"Tip!" Miles exclaimed. "You're some watchman."

"Lordy!" Rip advanced and added sheepishly: "I thought it was dem two again."

"What two?" demanded Scottie. "Dunno," Rip mumbled. "Two fellers come through her de yother right—and I ordehs dem away an' says de nex time dey come back I see gwine to shoot."

"What did they look like?" "But Rip could give no further information and the two detectives withdrew."

Miles looked up the house and retired. The family breakfasted late on Sunday and Carter was well enough to serve them but he came out to the detective who was helping in the pantry and asked:

"William, will you go up to Miss Patricia's door and tell her the folks are waiting for her?"

Miles hurriedly ascended and knocked upon Patricia's door but no reply came to him and after repeating the summons again and again he ventured to turn the knob. The door swung inward, revealing an empty room, the bed smooth and untouched, and lying in a heap across a chair where it had been carelessly flung, was the gown which Patricia had worn the night before. She was gone!

CHAPTER X
Miles proceeded straight to the dining room; he must see for himself what reaction the first shock of the news would bring to the family.

"Miss Patricia's not there, ma'am," the detective said quietly.

"Not—not there?" The woman's lips barely formed the words and a muttered oath came from Andrew.

but Roger only stared while the faint color ebbed from his thin face, leaving it waxen.

"Patricia! My God, not that! Not that last blow!" Hobart started up as Miss Drake sank back and Andrew cried out furiously:

"You see what you've done? You brought it on yourself!"

Andrew. The gentle Roger's tone was suddenly stern. "You need not add your recriminations to the situation. Patricia is Hobart's daughter, not yours."

"I must know! I must see for myself!" Miss Drake rose, swaying slightly, and left the room.

"It's that young rascal Dick Kemp!" Hobart exclaimed. "I told Jerusha it was a mistake to keep too tight a rein on the girl at this time, but she overruled me. I'll get that fall of his on the phone!"

"Wait until Jerusha returns," interrupted Roger. "The child may have left a note that will explain her absence—You may go William."

The detective had been ostensibly busying himself at the serving table in the corner but now he was compelled to retire to the pantry where Carter confronted him.

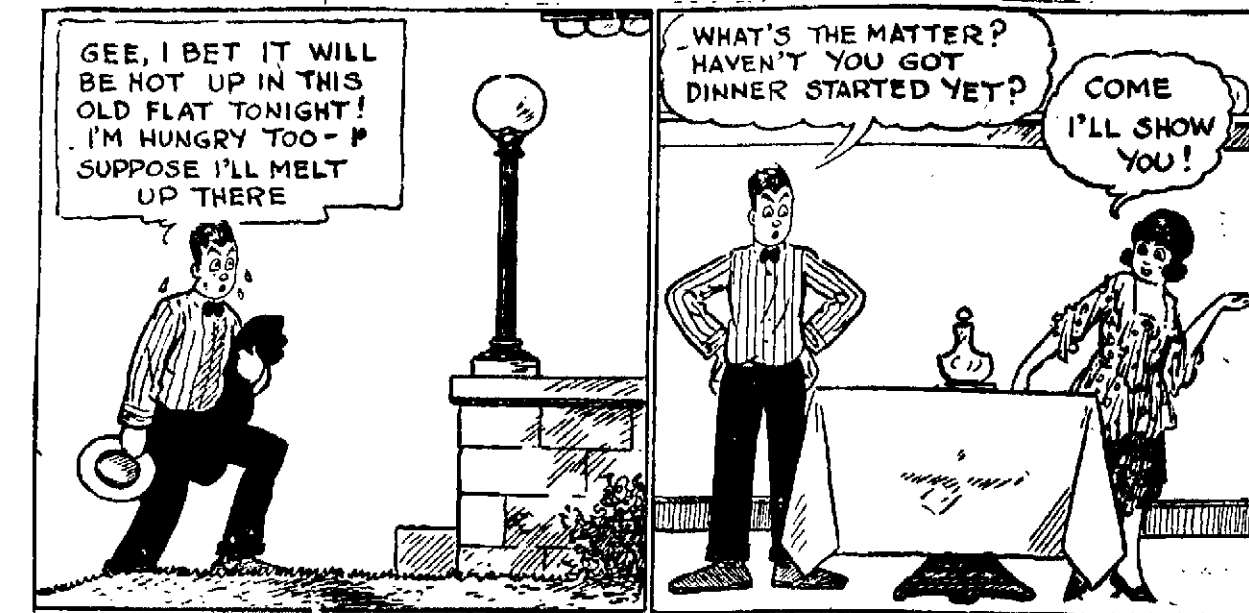

"I heard!" he exclaimed. "You're sure she's gone, William?" "Didn't I say the bed hadn't been slept in?" Miles returned. "Where are you going?"

"To tell Hilly!" Carter called back over his shoulder. With surprising agility considering his ailment, he darted through the farther door.

Hobart Drake was seated at his desk sealing an envelope as Miles entered in response to his ring. (Continued in Our Next Issue.)

LEONARD IS GIVEN SHADE IN NO DECISION FIGHT

Low Gives Benny Hard Twelve Round Battle

Philadelphian Has Best of Leonard in First Five Rounds of Fight

By Associated Press
New York—Benny Leonard still holds the world's lightweight boxing championship but he realizes that Low Tandler, Philadelphia left hander, is neither a "second rater" nor a "dub."

Champion since 1917, when he bowled over English Freddie Welsh, Leonard walked out of the great circus bowl on Boyle's Thirty Acres Thursday night with the crown perched far back on his head. Tandler put it there. Had the challenger the stamina to hold the lead he gained in the early rounds he would have knocked it off. Leonard won by the palest of shades.

The bout went the full 12 rounds and under the law of New Jersey, there was no official decision. Leonard had predicted that he would finish Tandler within seven rounds. In that period Leonard brushed aside blood that trickled from his brow, turned his head to one side spat out a tooth and grunted dissatisfaction.

The champion had the reserve strength to take the lead when Tandler faltered after boxing him all over the ring for four rounds.

Leonard was visibly dazed until this juncture. After the fourth Benny swept the cobwebs from his head with both hands.

The rally of the titleholder in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds nettled and rattled the Philadelphian, but in the eighth Lefty Low came back for a spell. Tandler shot a left, another and then another all to the champion's jaw. Leonard's knees sagged and he clutched Tandler's shoulders resting there.

Tandler was annoyed in the tenth by the champion's pasting two hands so Leonard let up, then feinted Tandler was fooled, he stepped back away turning from his antagonist. Leonard then sent straight rights and lefts to head and body and Tandler went to the ropes. Tandler fought back but the ropes stopped that.

They both missed often in the last two rounds but Leonard's sharp shooting right was the more accurate.

MERCHANTS PLAY GREEN BAY TEAM

The West End Merchants' baseball team will play Green Bay Stars at Brandt park next Sunday afternoon. This team is said to be the strongest amateur outfit in Green Bay and the Green Keepers are preparing for a tough battle. Turnover will pitch for the Merchants and Schabo will catch. Last Sunday the Merchants defeated the Greenville team at Greenville by the score of 7 to 3. Zuehlke pitched and Schabo caught.

SCHANG'S HOMER BEATS BROWNS IN ELEVEN INNINGS

Three Run Rally in Ninth by St. Louis Ties Score—Final Count, 6-5

St. Louis—Walter Schang's home run in the eleventh inning gave the Yankees a 6 to 5 victory in eleven innings over the Browns here on Thursday. The defeat cut the Browns' lead to half a game. The Browns tied the score with a three run rally in the ninth inning after the New Yorkers had taken the lead in the eighth by scoring four runs. Pipp of New York hit a homer in the fourth. Dave Danforth, pitcher of the Browns, was ordered out of the game in the tenth by Umpire Owens after the latter had examined a ball which Outfielder Witt of New York had charged he had been "doctored." The ball was turned over to Umpire Connolly who refused to let anybody see the ball. Score: New York 0 0 1 0 0 4 0 0 1—6 14 2 St. Louis 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 3 0 0—5 9 2 Batteries: Mays, Bush and Schang; Gidder, Kolp, Danforth, Wright and Severeid.

MACKS BEAT INDIANS
Cleveland—Philadelphia defeated Cleveland on Thursday 11 to 2 hitting three Cleveland pitchers freely. Prior to Thursday Coveleskie had won six straight. Bing Miller returned to the Philadelphia lineup after being benched for weak batting and made four hits in five times at bat. Galloway made four in four. Score: Philadelphia 0 0 2 4 0 0 3 0 2—11 17 2 Cleveland 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 0—2 7 2 Batteries: Naylor and Perkins; Coveleskie, Bagby, Mails and O'Neill, L. Sewell.

SOX IN 10 INNINGS
Chicago—A tenth inning rally by Chicago enabled her to nose out Boston 4 to 3, on Thursday. Karr was driven off the mound with one run in and two men on and Percy who attempted to check the rally passed Hooper to take a chance on Strunk. The veteran singled to center and sent home the winning run. Score: Boston 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 1—2 9 2 Chicago 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 3—4 13 0 Batteries: Karr, Perry and Ruel; Leverette, Schupp, Courtney and Schalk.

GRIFFS BEAT TYGERS
Detroit—Detroit was helpless before Zachary on Thursday, while Washington hit opportunely and won 9 to 1. The Nationals scored six runs off of Cole in the eighth inning after two were out on two passes an error and five hits one a triple by Zachary with two on base. Chick Gagnon for mer Holy Cross infielder, was released to Rochester by the Tigers. Score: Washington 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 6 0—9 13 1 Detroit 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—1 4 3 Batteries: Zachary and Plimich; Ehmke, Cole, Moore and Woodall.

KAUKAUNA PLAYERS GO TO MILWAUKEE

Two of Kaukauna's Valley league players received orders to report to the Milwaukee American association team in the fall "Boots" Lamers, short stop, and Lester Smith, pitcher are the men who have been selected. The Kaukauna men will finish the season with the Valley team so it will not be necessary for Brautigan to take on new men to fill these positions.

TRAILING THE TEAMS

Wallis Schang decided an eleven inning thriller put on by the Yankees in St. Louis with the Browns by knocking out a home run and clinching the game 6 to 5. The Giants at the Polo Grounds won their third straight game from the Cardinals 12 to 7 in an old fashioned slugger hit. The Sox, White and Red, played airtight ball for ten innings before the Chicago outfit was able to take the game 4 to 3 by piling up two tallies with one out in the last half of the tenth. It also took the Braves on their home field ten innings to defeat the Cubs 8 to 7. In Cleveland the Athletics put up a war dance that left the Indians defeated 11 to 2. A seventh inning rally by the Phillies with a homer by Williams with two men on base gave the home team a victory of 6 to 5, over Cincinnati. Washington humbled Cobb's Tigers in Detroit to the tune of 9 to 1. Detroit getting its lone score off Zachary in the fifth inning. Rain prevented the game between Brooklyn and Pittsburgh.

Leonard Retains Crown

Benny Leonard, right, came out of the bout with Lew Tandler, left, last night at Boyle's Thirty Acres still wearing the championship crown. The fight went twelve rounds. Some of the newspaper men at the ringside gave Benny the shade over Tandler and some called it a draw.

Interlakes Play Dale In Appleton Sunday

Changes Will Be Made in Interlake Lineup—Plechek to Hurl for Dale

Appleton baseball bugs desiring excitement Sunday afternoon will drive their fingers up to the top of the Tetulish hill and park at the Interlake baseball diamond to witness the battle between the County league team of the Pulpmakers and the Dale asgregation. For a real battle it is bound to be for the Interlakes finished the first half in the basement position and lost the game last Sunday to Kimberly's. They will be on deck with blood in their eyes to get the Dale team's scalp. Gregory's men have been tearing up the diamond in their drills this week. Determination reigns supreme and if the Dale team gets away without a drubbing it will be because the jinx has not given up trailing the Pulp hevers. Several shifts in the lineup of the Interlakes are likely although no definite announcement has been made yet. From Dale comes the report that the village team is equally determined to win and that all sounds like a regular tussle. Regular practice is being held for the Dale players and there is no telling when the jinx will get off their trail and follow some other outfit for a while. The mighty Plechek will occupy the hill Sunday and the Dale fans have a world of confidence in his ability to down the Pulpmakers on their own grounds.

Baseball's Biggest Bones

When a player steals a base with somebody occupying that particular bag, he is said to have pulled a "John Anderson."

The reason, of course, is that John Anderson is officially credited with being the first player to steal a base with the bag occupied. Baseball historians have it that Anderson pulled such a "bone," for the first time, back on June 14 1896 while playing for Washington against Baltimore in the National League. Anderson's stunt was pulled 25 years ago, but ball players have been doing the same thing ever since in the majors and minors. Hardly a year passes without a "John Anderson" being pulled by some player in the big series. Faber, who rarely tries to steal a base, for some reason elected to steal third. Noticing the pitcher winding up he got a good lead and slid safely into third. Unfortunately another Chicago Nayer was occupying the base, and Red much to his surprise and embarrassment, was tagged out.

At the end of the day's play they were tied, and it was necessary to play three extra holes before Chick could demonstrate his superiority. Since the recent meeting of the state fish and game conservation commission at Madison, a new regulation is being talked of, which will abolish the law that forces an angler to throw back into the stream all trout less than seven inches in length. It is said that this law kills thousands of young trout every year needlessly. Expert fishermen believe that 90 per cent of all trout hooked regardless of how carefully they are handled, die on being returned to the stream. A man sometimes returns three or four underized trout to the stream before he keeps one. In one day's fishing, he might easily return 40 such trout to the stream. The Fish Commission says that 36 of them will die. The proposed regulation will abolish this restriction but enforce a rule limiting the number of trout to be taken.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

They sometimes say that baseball is a "young man's game." And then along comes the latest batting averages with the name of some old veteran topping the list. Father Time has a difficult job in beating some of these boys to the finish line. Wonder how long it will be before he subdues that ever blooming Georgia Peach, Ty Cobb? And for that matter, golf is commonly termed "an old man's game." But only a few days ago, we watched a 21 year old player win the open championship of America, and there were some old and clever gentlemen playing against him. Over in Iowa, young Rudy Krupper won the state championship. And 19 year old, Ed die Held, gave Chick Evans a harder match than any other player he met in the western amateur tournament.

FITZPATRICK IS PREMIER COACH OF TRACK TEAMS

Cornell Coach is Called Greatest Developer of Athletes—Like Connie Mack

By Billy Evans
In baseball Connie Mack stands out as a developer of star players. Mack is one of the few major league managers who takes unknown youngsters from the colleges or sandlots and in a few short years makes stars out of them. A majority of the major league leaders when seeking to strengthen their teams simply go out and buy a lot of high priced minor league stars.

A number of American League clubs boast one or more star players who made his debut under Mack's direction. The Chicago White Sox have Eddie Collins and Amos Strunk. New York boasts Wally Schang, Bob Shawkey, Joe Bush and "Whitey" Witt. Boston has Joe Dugan. Cleveland has Stuff McInnis. Steve O'Neill and Stanley Coveleskie.

LIKE CONNIE MACK
In college track athletics Keene Fitzpatrick occupies much the same place that Connie Mack holds in major league baseball. Fitzpatrick stands out as one of the greatest developers of college athletes in the history of the track sport.

In the old days Keene Fitzpatrick vied with the late Mike Murphy for premier honors. A few years before his death when Murphy was in charge at the University of Pennsylvania I paid him a visit. I had a twofold object. I had suffered an injury to my left knee during a ball game and wanted his advice as to how to care for it. Likewise I wanted to talk shop.

Mike Murphy's success as a track coach was due to his remarkable knowledge of anatomy. He knew more about the human body than many doctors. Somehow he could get an athlete in shape after a learned doctor would count him out of the running.

A SECOND MURPHY
Fitzpatrick and Murphy were old cronies. They always swapped ideas. Today Fitzpatrick occupies much the same position as did Mike Murphy before his death. Much of Fitzpatrick's success is due to his knowledge of the anatomy. He is a great conditioner.

Fitzpatrick is now at Princeton. While at Michigan he took the relay championships year after year. The splendid all round showing of the Princeton University was the outstanding feature of the recent intercollegiate meet. It was a great tribute to the ability of Keene Fitzpatrick.

Despite California's victory Princeton presented the best balanced machine in the big Harvard meet. The Tigers scored a points in every branch of competition.

TRUST IN GOD

Getting back to Mike Murphy. During my visit with him I asked the great trainer what he regarded as the most difficult event in the intercollegiate meet. Without the slightest hesitation he replied:

"The 440 yard run because it is a sprint all the way. That interested me and I asked Murphy how he in-

WHAT MAKES 'EM DO IT
Fishing, like most everything else, has its share of contradictions. Out side of the general run of the game such as bait, plug or fly casting and the method of tossing the lure to the eager fish, you are likely, old man, to find the entire deck of rules and regulations passed into the discard by the fish themselves.

Of course a knowledge of the habits and home life of the different fish, gained through study and observation, gives us a basis upon which we can safely rely in our efforts to entice the big fins to a closer acquaintance. At the same time the experiences of fellow anglers adds much valuable data upon which to base out campaigns "somewhere on the waters."

With all this dope on the "how" of the game packed away in our gray matter and the tackle box jammed to the lid, with the few extras stuck in the grip we feel that we have "em panting for wind before we even hit the steel for the home grounds of the game boys.

Following rule "one hundred or so we select a nice little shiner about eight inches long for a try at the musky. Down in our mind we have a sort of feeling that the bait is too large, looks mighty big in the water. Then the strike, the rapid flight of the wolf of the waters, the landing and the hero stuff as you reach camp with a 30 pounder. This is the usual musky story, but along comes Ed aight lachy enthusiast who hooks a 30 pounder on a small red bass fly and on landing the musky Ed is surprised to find the feet and legs of a full grown mud hen sticking out of the fishes throat. He had not been able to entirely swallow this water fowl before he took a wallop at a little old bass fly. And what shows him up as a real hog of the first water is the fact that another mud hen was found in his stomach by the taxidermist who stuffed him. (Copyright, 1922, Stewart Kidd Co.)

CHANGE RULING WHICH SUSPENDED BABE RUTH

Chicago—The American league club owners meeting on Thursday agreed to allow any American league player to participate in exhibition games after the close of the regular season provided he obtains permission of his club owner and Judge Landis. The change in the rules is a result of the trouble in which "Babe" Ruth and two of his Yankee team mates found themselves last season.

structed his men to perform in the 440. Well, I always tell the boys to run the first 200 yards at top speed, then try to get the next 200 a little bit faster."

"And what about the final 440 yards?" I asked. "They simply must trust to God to get them over the last 40 yards," was Murphy's laconic reply.

APPLE CREEK TEAM TO PLAY AT WINCHESTER
The Apple Creek baseball team will play the Winchester team at Winchester next Sunday. Bernard will pitch and Ziegler catch for the Apple Creek team.

FOUR INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE TEAMS TO PLAY SATURDAY

Fox River and Tuttle in Fourth Ward—Valley and Toy Co. at Brandt Park

All of the Appleton Factory league baseball teams will be playing in the city next Saturday afternoon. Fans with a Saturday afternoon to spare will have the opportunity to see a game on either side of the river.

The Fox River Paper company team will play the Tuttle Press outfit. The game will probably be staged on the Fourth ward school diamond. Both teams lost their game last Saturday by big scores so here will be a lot of hard work ahead of them to redeem themselves.

The Toy Company aggregation will clinch with the Valley Iron Works team at Brandt park.

Kimberly Clark team is scheduled to meet the Combined Locks team but this game might have to be postponed because several of the KC players will not be able to play.

Ruth And Dugan Get Razzing By St. Louis Fans

By Associated Press
St. Louis—The yowls and yowls of a cat and dog fight are like sweet music from a violin compared with the years shouted by St. Louis fans in the present Browns-Yankee series at the former Boston players with the New York team.

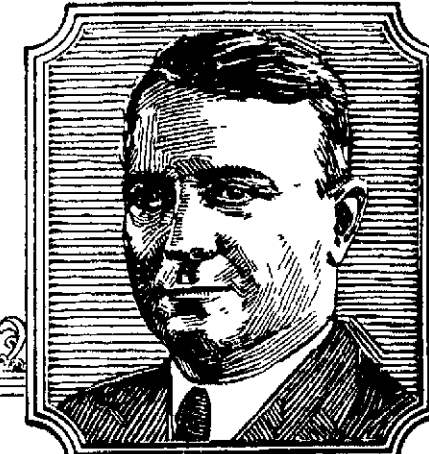

Babe Ruth and Joe Dugan who were recently accused from Boston as the chief subjects of the verbal attack. When Babe walks out on the field the 15,000 or more persons begin singing "Ain't she cute ain't she sweet oh, ain't she got tremendous feet."

This is continued until Babe reaches his post in left field.

"When Joe Dugan comes to bat this little rhyme comes from the bleachers:

"I want a play with New York,
"When I am playing ball
"If I can't play with New York,
"I won't play ball at all."

Ruth gets a hand however when he pokes a home run.

How The Master Driver Became Master Tire Builder

IN 1903, driving the "999" racing car, Barney Oldfield started his career of victories that later earned him the title of "Master Driver of the World." To overcome the tire weaknesses that made racing difficult and dangerous, he studied tires—specified materials—supervised construction.

American tires that have ever taken first place in the French Grand Prix. They have won for three consecutive years in the 500-mile Indianapolis Sweepstakes. So far in 1922, Oldfields have lowered four World's Records and seven track records.

Today, Barney Oldfield is known as the "Master Tire Builder." Starting with the crude tires which carried the "999" one mile in sixty seconds, Oldfield gradually developed his famous Cords—a set of which covered 500 miles at eighty-eight miles an hour without a change.

The Wichita Test Run gave evidence of Oldfield superiority in touring—when a set of four Cords covered 34,525 miles over rutted, frozen, winter roads—a performance attested by the Mayor of Wichita.

In three years Oldfield tires have won every important race on American speedways. They are the only

STRANGE SCENES TAKE PLACE IN MOSCOW COURT

Defendants Make Political Speeches and Argue With Presiding Judges

By Associated Press

Moscow—Sensation followed upon the drama of the Russian revolution which has been unfolded in the theatrical setting of the trial of 34 members of the Socialist Revolutionary party accused of high treason against the Communist regime.

The proceedings of the court were so different from the American and Western European conceptions of jurisprudence that, to the neutral observer, it seemed more of a trilling melodrama than a serious trial in which human lives were at stake.

A brother was arraigned against his sister, former political companions were bitterly pitted against each other; and the sharp divisions made by the Russian civil war between former friends were displayed day by day in a colorful tableau set in a frame of bayonets.

Openly announcing that the proletarian system of justice was different from that of any other, the presiding judges of the revolutionary tribunal permitted far wider latitude to both prosecution and defense than could be imagined by an American jurist.

Prisoners were permitted to speak at will, to interrupt witnesses and to make long political addresses from the benches where they sat, day by day guarded by khaki clad soldiers with bayoneted rifles. At one time some of the prisoners arose and threatened to withdraw from the trial. Again they argued with the presiding judge that the hours of sitting were too long.

"They feel that they are doomed; for several years they have been imprisoned and now, while they have the chance, they are going to talk politics," one of the counsel for the defense said in explaining the prisoners' attitude. From the very beginning of the trial on June 8 the principal defendants took the stand that they were responsible, not to the court, but to history and to their own consciences, and thereupon they began to carry on an unruly program that might well have shocked an American judge into having them put back in their cells and ordering the trial to go on without them.

GOLD AND DIAMONDS COME FROM AFRICA

Leopoldville, Belgian Congo—Gold and diamond mining has greatly increased in the Belgian Congo since the Armistice, and in May 1922 it reached the highest point ever known in the history of the colony. The steamer Anversville left for Antwerp recently carrying 1,100 pounds of gold bullion and several million francs worth of diamonds.

Cotton growing for the current year has been so successful that two new mechanical shelling shops have been installed. The necessary machinery was brought in from Worcester, Mass.

Commerce in general has profited greatly by the reduction in wages. Owing to the economic crisis which obtained throughout 1921, the negro workers are now accepting a diminution of 25 to 33 per cent from the wages which were paid them during the war and in 1919 and 1920.

BAKERS OF GERMANY HAVE ANNIVERSARY

Berlin—Berlin's oldest trades association, the bakers' guild, this month observed the 650 anniversary of its founding.

Although this organization, which was known originally as the Germania guild, dates back only to 1272, there is documentary evidence that the bakers' trade was allied there as early as 1280. By 1890 there were 750 members enrolled. Meanwhile another association of bakers, the Konfektoria, sprang up, and in 1911 the two organizations were amalgamated in a body which now requires affiliation of every baker in the city. The present membership includes 1,670 concerns.

FARM LABORERS OF ENGLAND ARE GAINING WEALTH

Official Reports Show That Many Are Now Driving
Their Own Autos

By Associated Press

London—"Many men who ten years ago were farm laborers now drive their own motorcars." That sounds like an extract from a story about California or some other American state where farmers sometimes make a lot of money. But it isn't. It is taken from a report of the big profits made in Hampshire, Kent, Lincolnshire and a few other counties of this old land by farmers who raise fruits and particularly strawberries.

Such tales are not often heard in England. English farmers, as a rule, take more delight in telling tales of woe than of well-being. We furnish more details of this agricultural prosperity, the report says: "In one case a man cut up a field of 15 acres in acre plots and offered it to the laborers of the parish. He had arranged the payments to extend over ten years, but nine of the 15 purchasers paid for it on the spot. Within four years all the rest paid up. One of them during the last three years has sold 11,000 worth of strawberries from his one acre plot."

"It is not strawberries alone that such men turn their attention to. They make good profits out of plums, apples, cherries, gooseberries and currants."

"At the time of the great agricultural depression Gladstone suggested that farmers should grow fruit instead of corn. His suggestion was received with scorn and derision by the old-fashioned farmers. One man, however, thought the experiment worth trying. He has retired with a large fortune. Hundreds of others are now following in his footsteps."

"They feel that they are doomed; for several years they have been imprisoned and now, while they have the chance, they are going to talk politics," one of the counsel for the defense said in explaining the prisoners' attitude.

turn in the world amounted to only 3,000 pounds. This is one-fourth of the pre-war product. At one time Bulgaria produced 95 per cent of the world's supply of atar of roses.

The decline in the industry is due partly to an unchecked disease in the rose bushes, partly to the neglect of the gardens as a result of mobilization, partly to decreased demand for the product from the United States, but more particularly to profiteering by the middlemen who not only have disposed of the essence at exorbitant prices, but have also ruined the reputation of Bulgarian producers by adulterating the essence.

Fundamentals in Milk Control

Well bred and well fed dairy cattle are the basis of agriculture and our hope for a new generation of brighter, healthier children

It would be difficult indeed to find anyone who would not agree with Dr. Chas. E. North of New York City, when he says that because the nursing mother as well as the artificially fed infant are dependent on a pure milk supply; and because milk is or should be the principal food for growing children, a municipal milk supply, therefore, has a most important and direct relation to the health of the people of every community.

Dr. North in presenting the fundamental principles underlying milk control very rightly says that the most dangerous infection of milk consumers originates from infectious diseases of the dairy cow or infectious diseases of persons employed in the handling of milk. And because this is true, the first step in proper municipal milk control must consist in either a prevention of contamination of milk by cattle and human infection, or the destruction of such infectious bacteria after they have gained access to the milk.

In the production of milk on the dairy farm, then, such methods should be employed that will prevent it from becoming seriously contaminated from stable refuse, cow dirt, unclean utensils or any other form of external contamination. A milk consumer is entitled to a product that is clean on the grounds of decency, irrespective of the element of safety. The bacterial test on milk is superior to any other test for determining the efficiency and vigilance of the farmer in producing and handling his produce from the cow to the milk house.

It is also the opinion of this well-known authority that all milk, with the possible exception—and note that he says possible exception—of milk which has been produced under the most sanitary conditions and from dairy cows under frequent inspection and tuberculin tested, and produced and handled by employees under frequent competent medical inspection, should be pasteurized. For, in Dr. North's opinion, even the utmost care and sanitation cannot always prevent accidental contamination of milk by dangerous bacteria. Also that there is no system of veterinary inspection which can guarantee that the bacteria which causes inflammation of the udder of the dairy cow may not accidentally gain access to the milk.

The above suggestions from Dr. North are certainly of timely value. In this connection, too, it should be noted that he himself is doing some very important work in organizing dairy farmers and instructing them in the simple but important methods which may be employed to insure a clean and safe milk.—Bulletin, Chicago School of Sanitary Instruction, Department of Health.

Robinson Crusoe in Russia

In rural Russia the peasants still make their own crude boots, tools and farming implements. Yet not so many generations ago our pioneers faced similar conditions. It is a tribute to New World genius that better ways were soon developed.

The market of today is the logical outcome of the American faculty for distributing effort to best advantage. We are a nation of specialists, no jack-of-all-trades. Scientific, economical, distribution has been perfected in this market that relieves the individual of all concern as to his needs, except the mere incident of selection.
